KIDNAPPED TO ASYLUM, SAYS MRS. PIERCE

Daring Horsewomen May Be Kept for Year in Private Sanitorium.

STARTLING INCIDENTS IN MRS. "TOM'S" CAREER

When a school girl she threw a bunch of violets to a leading woman in a Salem theatre and jerked it back with a spring.

Wore men's racing trousers, coat and Rough Rider hat, while hunting, and then raced the men to exhaustion.

Sprained her ankle by bad fall in Newport Horse Show while making daring leap with her stallion Bayadere.

Sued by Patrick Jones for $1,000 worth of household goods taken by burglars from a house leased to her while she was absent hunting.

Sued for $10,000 by a Salem photographer, who says she knocked him down and kicked him because he sold her photographs to a Boston newspaper which she dislikes.

Lost a tooth in Virginia hunt last Fall, when her horse stumbled and threw her.

Entered chariot races at Jamaica, Long Island, subway celebration, last year.

Boston and North Shore society is today shocked to learn that Mrs. Tom Pierce, is out of one asylum only to enter a private retreat. She will remain a year it is expected.

The rich woman's release from the Green Farms Sanatorium, near Bridgeport, Ct., was brought about by agreement among counsel after habeas corpus proceedings for her release had been brought by her lawyer, John J. Walsh of Norwalk.

The application for release was opposed by James A. Marr, who had been retained by Mrs. Pierce's brother, Jacob C. Rogers of New York. Rogers formerly was secretary to Everett B. Webster, president of the Wire Trust, who died in Florida last December. Webster cut off his wife in his will and left the bulk of his $8,000,000 estate to Mrs. Rogers and Mrs. D. Gubbins of London, wife of Webster's partner in England.

The two society women had devoted much time, it was explained, to advancing the social fortunes of Webster, and he was grateful for it. The provisions of the Webster will caused a sensation. A compromise was reached with the widow whereby she received one-third of the estate, and there was no contest.

Strangely Detained.

In the hearing here the lawyers for the woman asserted she had been forced to come to this State and that, as she was a resident of another State, her detention in the sanatorium was unlawful. The other side showed that Mrs. Pierce signed voluntarily the papers upon which she was admitted to Greens Farms. It was then that an agreement was reached for her transfer.

Mrs. Pierce was accompanied by Miss Adele Ritchie, comic opera actress, and four other friends.

"I had some trouble with my relatives," she told other inmates of the sanatorium, "because I chose to leave my quiet home at Beverly Farms and take up a residence in New York. They objected to this and to the companions I chose. They said I should spend my time with society women instead of stage folk that I found far more clever."

Mrs. Pierce talked much about Miss Ritchie, saying that her friendship for the actress had also aroused the family's disapproval.

Kidnapped in Auto, She Says.

She never realized, she says, that drastic steps would be taken to thwart her social inclinations until she left her brother's office in Thirtieth street, New York, on November 13. She had entered a taxicab for a short drive before supper.

Suddenly the cab stopped and two doctors and a nurse stepped in. She was told that a Westport, Conn., judge had ordered her committed to a sanatorium, and that she would straightway be taken there. In a garage in the West Sixties she was, she says, transferred to a big touring car and warned against making an outcry.

Overwhelmed by the situation, she said she broke down utterly and offered no resistance.

Until going to New York this Fall Mrs. Pierce has been living quietly with her child at her home in Beverly Farms. The boy is now with his father, who returned recently from Texas to Boston to attend the wedding of his sister, Marion.

Thomas W. Pierce, the Topsfield millionaire, who got a divorce from Mrs. "Tom" in the Essex County Superior Court on April 24, 1907, said to-day that he knows nothing of his former wife, and has not seen her in months.

When they were divorced they agreed to take little Tom, their six-year-old son, six months each at a time. Only two months ago the boy's father complained that his wife was associating with Adele Ritchie, the actress, and a set of stage people whose influence, he declared, was harmful to the boy, and he insisted on having the exclusive care of the lad. Mrs. Pierce, apparently, did not think the matter worth quarreling over, and despite her great love for the lad let his father have him.

WOMAN IN FAURE MYSTERY

ARREST OF MME. STEINHEIL MAY EXPLAIN FRENCH PRESIDENT'S DEATH.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—The strange mystery of President Faure's death promises to be cleared up through the arrest of Mme. Steinheil for the slaying of her husband and stepmother.

That high government officials and a nobleman admirer of the woman will be involved is expected.

That the President died of poison and that a woman is suspected is the story that has excited high official circles. All Paris is in a ferment.

Mme. Steinheil's confession last night that she knew the murderer of her husband and her stepmother, was but the introduction to a series of rapid developments which threaten ere long to involve some important government officials. Many members of the Chamber of Deputies gave warning to-day that they will call the matter up in the Chamber unless the government undertakes to probe the scandal to the bottom.

The failure of the police to clear up the mystery has led to the public assertion that their lack of energy is dictated by powerful political reasons dating back to the death in Paris in 1899 of Felix Faure, once President of the republic.

Although hushed up at the time, it was common knowledge of those behind the scenes that Mme. Steinheil was with M. Faure when he died. Some of the Paris afternoon newspapers do not hesitate to print what they term the story of the affair. According to these stories, M. Faure met Mme. Steinheil in the Swiss Alps during the manoeuvres the year before his death, and she was greatly enamored of him.

One of the stories current to-day was that Minister of Justice Briand had ordered an investigation of the accusation that M. Leydet, the examining magistrate, had been instrumental in stifling the investigation.

Mme. Steinheil made her confession to two newspaper men. She said that a man named Alexander Wolff murdered her husband.

Wolff was arrested. He denied guilt and said he was ready to prove an alibi.

Mme. Steinheil weakened and said if it was not Wolff the man who did commit the crime resembled him strangely.

Then suspicion turned upon Mme. Steinheil herself, and she was put in prison on the strength of a warrant which makes no specific charge.

LINER CUT IN TWO; 4 DROWN IN COLLISION

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Four lives were lost in a collision between the Panama steamer Finance, outward bound, and the White Star freighter Georgic, inward bound, off Sandy Hook, yesterday. The Finance was almost cut in two and now lies a hopeless wreck northeast of the Hook, her deck houses, funnels and masts all that can be seen above the ocean.

The collision was due to the fog, which has blocked navigation in and about New York harbor since Monday, and which held up a fleet of twenty ocean craft of all kinds.

The drowned were: W. H. Todd, third assistant engineer; Charles W. Schweuler, passenger; Miss Irene Campbell, passenger; Henry Miller, passenger.

Woman Jumped Overboard.

Miss Campbell, according to the story of the survivors, was panic-stricken after the collision and jumped overboard. She was discovered clinging to the aft rail, but her strength gave out and she sank before the rescuers could reach her.

Following the collision an ammonia tank in the engine room exploded, driving the firemen and engineers to the deck. Todd was the last to leave, and the horror of his experience evidently robbed him of his senses.

He rushed wildly to the deck and, before he could be prevented, jumped overboard. He sank immediately and his body was not recovered. The other two passengers also jumped overboard after the collision and were drowned.

The Finance had on board eighty-five passengers and a crew of sixty-five. They were all, with the exception of the four victims, put on the Georgic, which started with them back to port.

$600,000 Cargo Lost.

The Georgic had been anchored off the Hook lightship since Monday, and when it was seen that the haze was lighter her captain decided to try to make quarantine, as a goodly portion of his cargo, valued at $600,000, was of a perishable nature.

At that time Captain Mowbray got the Finance under way and she was proceeding slowly outward when the big Georgic loomed up directly in front of her. There was a quick succession of signals, but it was impossible to avert a smash, and the sharp steel prow of the White Star boat crashed into the vitals of the smaller craft.

The sunken ship is considered a total loss.

Via Wireless

(Special News Item.)

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—Thompson Buchanan's absorbing novel, from the sensationally successful play, "Via Wireless," begins in the BOSTON AMERICAN tomorrow. Don't miss the opening chapter.

RICE PLEADS GUILTY; HELD ON NEW CHARGE

Edwin L. Rice, the young man who was arrested in a sensational way in the Adams House reception room on the complaint of Mrs. Melvin M. Johnson, the society woman of Riverside Court, Cambridge, who charged him with attempting blackmail, pleaded guilty this morning before United States Commissioner Hayes.

He was released on bail of $500 until Monday when the case will be further disposed of. He walked out into the hall where he was met by Inspector Morris Wolff of police headquarters and Special Officer Joseph F. Laughlin who told him they wanted him to go to headquarters.

Handed New Warrant.

"What for?" he asked, but apparently not much surprised. Wolff handed him a warrant. It charged him with obtaining $140 worth of jewelry under false pretenses from the W. H. Richardson Company, Washington street, near Franklin, a year ago.

"All right, inspector, let's go," said Rice. His lawyer, Mr. Evarts of Robert M. Morse's firm, said he would see Rice in a little while.

Rice was unable to get bail for two days after his arrest. He walked into the commissioner's office this morning as unconcerned as usual. He wore his blue Summer serge suit, his low cut shoes, a purple four-in-hand, a black derby. He had to wait an hour before Melvin M. Johnson, the husband of the woman in the case, and Assistant District Attorney William H. Garland appeared.

Changes Plea to Guilty.

Rice at once stood before the railing and his lawyer announced his change of plea to guilty. Consent to his release on the same bond until Monday was then given.

When he was arrested Rice was extremely defiant and threatened to shake Boston society with a scandal if he were prosecuted.

"It's true I wrote letters to Mrs. Johnson," he said. "But what of it? I wrote to her asking that she repay me money she owes to me. Is there anything wrong about trying to collect your debts?"

Whatever has happened since and negotiations between Rice and the District Attorney's office he was very much altered this morning. His air of defiance had given way to one of calm confidence as if he very well knew what sort of a sentence his plea of guilty would bring to him.

Wanted for Hotel Bill.

A police officer from Winthrop met Rice on his way to headquarters and served a warrant charging him with beating a hotel at Winthrop out of a board bill last Summer. It is charged Rice got away from his Winthrop landlord by jumping through a window.

The postponement until Monday was explained by the lawyers. They say Commissioner Hayes had not actually accepted the plea of guilty, for had he done so he would have had to hold Rice for the United States District Court, which alone has jurisdiction in fixing the bail. As that court does not open until Monday, Rice would have been compelled to stay in jail until then. By letting the proceedings before him continue, the commissioner had the legal right to allow the bail to run.

POLICE TRAIL SUSPECT FOR MYSTERY FIRE

Deputy Chief Neal of the State police and Captain Hall of Station 6 have been working hard all night and to-day to clear the mystery surrounding the fire last night in Bloomfield's junk store at Midway and Richards streets, South Boston. As a result of their work the officers are searching for a man to whom suspicion points as having caused the fire. The police refuse to name him.

It was in Bloomfield's store that a watchman shot and fatally wounded a burglar on July 4 last. The watchman himself stopped a bullet, but recovered. The thief was looting the safe of a large quantity of old gold and silver metal stored there.

Last night's fire was undoubtedly incendiary, and whoever touched the match to the inflammable material must have had a key to enter. Any other theory is impossible, as the place was thoroughly wired with burglar alarms, and only entrance through the front door in the regular way was possible, the police and burglar alarm companies insist.

The fire was started in the basement, and a second pile of rubbish forty feet distant and on the floor above was burning fiercely when Chief Mullen arrived. Yet there was no sign of the fire burning through the floor. The two fires had been touched off almost simultaneously, and the incendiary then made his careful escape.

The safe was unlocked, but contained nothing whatever of value. A possible theory is that the companions of the burglar who was killed in the place in July, two of whom are said then to have escaped swearing they would return some day and get even, carried out their threat and after looting the safe, set the place on fire. The damage is $2,000.

Mr. Bloomfield, the proprietor, is in New York. His family was unable to say in his absence what had been taken from the safe.

An ugly feature of the attempt to destroy the building was the tampering with the nearest hydrants. It was ten minutes before the companies which answered the two alarms could get anything like normal pressure into their lines.

The building which was on fire is a two-story brick. The Boston Kindling Wood Company is in the rear and the L. C. Chase paper factory adjoins. Both were fine material for the fire which several times appeared to be getting into them.

ACTRESS PUTS BULLET INTO BRAIN

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Mrs. E. M. Cowper, a former actress, and a guest at the Hotel St. Regis, Fifth avenue and Fifty-fifth street, to-day put a bullet into her head in her room there, and lay on her bed for several hours until a friend, whom she had notified of her intention, rushed to the hotel and notified the management of what had happened. She was dying when the management broke open the door.

Mrs. Cowper lay on her bed, fully dressed, a bullet wound in her right temple and the revolver, a small 22-calibre, old-fashioned weapon, near her. The pillow which she had placed over her face to kill the sound of the shot had slipped to one side. She was unconscious, but still breathing.

Letters showed that Mrs. Cowper, who is a widow of forty, had planned her intended suicide very carefully.

Beyond the mere fact that she was despondent, Mrs. Cowper left no indication of why she wanted to end her life.

MORE JEWELS RETURNED IN STRANGE THEFT

Conscience has often played an important part in the restoration of stolen property, but seldom does it work out in the way which thieves are taking to send back to Miss Catherine Lonergan of No. 257 Rindge avenue, North Cambridge, the $1,500 worth of jewels which they took from her several months ago.

To-day Miss Lonergan received a package postmarked West Somerville. It contained an ordinary pasteboard box. Opening it she found, wrapped carefully in tissue, several of the stolen jewels worth $250.

The day following the theft a diamond ring was returned to her by mail.

Three weeks later another diamond ring was placed on her window sill. Then at irregular intervals came stickpins, brooches, a watch. A neighbor once found one of the stolen rings in her yard.

Miss Lonergan is not superstitious but has a decidedly uncanny feeling about the mysterious robbery. The motive of the thief is unfathomable. The police say the case is too much for them.

BROCK AND LEE, BOTH PARTIES

George E. Brock, Republican, and Joseph Lee, Democrat, have been agreed upon by the leaders of both parties as a bi-partisan ticket for school committee, following the refusal of James J. Storrow to be a candidate again.

Both men will be nominated by the committee of twenty-five which the delegates to the Republican city convention in Union Hall to-night will elect to choose party nominees. They will be nominated, too, by the Democratic city convention in Faneuil Hall to-night, unless the supporters of other candidates succeed in kicking over the apple cart.

The Donovan-Doyle faction, which favored either Robert A. Woods or Joseph A. Sheehan for one of the school committee nominations, will support Brock and Lee. The Lomasney forces, it is said, have also agreed to this program. Objection is feared from the supporters of Mrs. Julia A. Duff. Rumor has it that her name will be sprung in the convention.

The "Brock and Lee" ticket will be indorsed by the Public School Association and the Good Government Association.

STOLE DIME; GOES TO JAIL

For stealing a dime from nine-year-old Caroline Lee, William Dunham, who is twenty-two, was to-day setn to the Massachusetts Reformatory at Concord.

"That's the man who stole my money," said Caroll ento-day to Judge Joseph R. Churchill in the Dorchester Municipal Court. Caroline lives at No. 58 Downer street, while the young man's home is at No. 28 Sawyer street.

"I was at the grocery store on last Tuesday night getting things for mother. He was there when I came away. I had 10 cents change. He came after me and said: 'The woman in the store sent me for that 10 cents. She made the wrong change.'

"I wouldn't give it to him, for I knew the change was right, but he snatched it and ran. I went home, and then I told the police about him.

CART DROPS INTO HOLE IN CITY STREET

John Coveny, driver for the Metropolitan Coal Company, was surprised early to-day when opposite No. 41 Bedford street to have the wagon on which he was seated, and which contained a two-ton load of coal, sink almost out of sight in the road. The hole into which the cart dropped is fully fifteen feet deep and six feet in diameter. It is believed that Bedford street is underlaid by a bed of quicksand and the covering of the road suddenly gave way.

NEW SHELL AND GUN A SUCCESS

Further tests made at Newport, R. I., of the new shell and gun invented by Lieutenant-Commander Clelland Davis, U. S. N., were more interesting than the recent test in this city, and the board of army and navy officers who saw it announced that the invention was a success.

The gun was set up on a float and one of the new shells was fired at a steel torpedo net. It is said that the shell penetrated the net and besides went through a mass of steel and wood inside.

FULLBACK MADE A HERO BY ROOSEVELT

President Roosevelt has made a national hero of Ernest Ver Wiebe, the Harvard fullback. The President has shattered tradition by sending the fullback a letter of laudation, because Ver Wiebe, after helping land the ball on Yale's fifteen-yard line, willingly sacrificed his position to allow "Vic" Kennard to step in and kick the goal that won the great game for Harvard. Here is the President's remarkable letter:

My Dear Mr. Ver Wiebe: Like every other Harvard man I have the heartiest feeling of gratitude to the entire team who won the great victory of Saturday last. But I feel an especial self gratitude towards you. You were our star ground gainer. It was through you more than anyone else that the ball was put in a position to enable Kennard to do the work which he did so admirably, and to kick the goal from the field.

For the good of the team your individual good was sacrificed, and through this sacrifice and through the admirable work you had already done and through Kennard's kick a victory was won. However, it was a first-rate example of the interest of an individual being subordinated to the good of the team; there cannot be any better lesson for our national life than to teach that the good of the individual must be subordinated for the good of our people.

Now, I have the heartiest admiration for Kennard's feat. He kicked the goal and he did service that no one else could have done, and too much praise cannot be given him, but you are entitled to every whit as much, and every man I have met here feels just the way I do. With heartiest wishes and congratulations, believe me, sincerely yours,

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

P. S.—I wish I could thank personally every man on the eleven, from Burr down and Haughton and Graves and everybody who has done anything for the eleven, including substitutes and the second eleven. Mr. Ernest Ver Wiebe, Harvard University.

MRS. SAMPSON TO BE KEPT IN SPECIAL ROOM

ROCHESTER, Nov. 27.—Calm and resolute in her determination to say nothing in regard to her case, Mrs. Georgia Elizabeth Sampson, charged with killing her husband, Harry Sampson, nephew of the late Admiral, is in the cell formerly occupied by Fred Schultz, a notorious slayer.

But Mrs. Sampson will not be forced to remain in the cell very long. A room is being prepared in the upper part of the jail for her. Bars are being placed at the windows, but otherwise the room will be like an ordinary living room.

George S. Tinklepaugh, who is associated with Edward W. Hamm in the defense, says:

"Harry Sampson was insanely jealous of his wife. That was shown at the inquest. On the morning of the tragedy he threatened to kill himself."

YOUNG SISTERS BECOME BRIDES AT SAME TIME

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 27.—After courtships of only a few months two sisters are to-day the brides of two well known young men here. Miss Florence Elizabeth Miller became the wife of Edward J. Lennon and Miss Ethea May Miller was wedded to John J. Travers, the knots being tied at the St. Thomas Church by the Rev. Walter I. Tourtelott yesterday.

The brides are noted in the city for their beauty and because of their youth both young women were obliged to secure the consent of their father to the ceremonies. Mrs. Lennon is only twenty years of age, while Mrs. Travers is four years her junior and has just completed her school course.

The two sisters are the only children of Elishe S. Miller of Smith street, who gave his daughters away.

Flashes by Wire

NEW YORK.—Suit for $50,000 damages has been brought in the United States Circuit Court by the Rev. James Le Baron Johnson, formerly chaplain of the Fire Department, against John Purroy Mitchel and Ernest J. Gallaher, commissioner of accounts. The action is based on a public statement by these defendants which the clergyman says was false and malicious.

HAVANA.—Gov. Magoon will start for Washington early next week to confer with President Roosevelt and President-elect Taft concerning questions connected with the evacuation of the island by the Americans. The army forces that the visit may perhaps mean that the withdrawal of the troops will not commence next month, as has been hoped for.

LONDON.—Thousands of the unemployed of London, carrying a large banner bearing the words "Work or Revolution. The government must decide," have now taken to marching through the fashionable districts of the city. One of the leaders said:—"We are going to let the West End know that the East End does not intend to starve."

MELVIN HAD POISON HIDDEN IN HAT BAND

Medical Examiner William G. Macdonald made the announcement to-day that James Melvin, whose dead body was discovered in his cell in the Charles street jail where he had been locked up after shooting his onetime friend, Paul Grover, in Bowdoin street, had committed suicide by means of poison. An examination of the body was made yesterday at the Morgue.

The discovery was made that Melvin had smuggled into the jail with him, under the band of his hat, some cyanide. It was overlooked by the officers when the man was searched after the shooting.

It is believed that Melvin carefully planned to kill Grover and then kill himself. He had purchased the cyanide and [illegible].

Then he secured from the keepers some jail stationery and wrote farewell letters to three persons. These are now in the possession of the Medical Examiner.

FOUR FAMILIES ENDANGERED BY FIREBUG

Four families were forced to flee for their lives yesterday morning from an incendiary fire which started in the basement of No. 2953 Washington street, Roxbury. Waughn Bolan of 2976 Washington street, discovered the fire shortly before five o'clock, gave the alarm and before the flames reached the upper apartments tenants succeeded in reaching the street in safety.

At 2955 Washington street, Mrs. Mary Callahan and her children, William, Helen, Cornelius and John, were slightly overcome by smoke. In an upper apartment at the same address, Charles McLean and his three children, John, Joseph and Mary, were compelled to make a hasty exit in their nightclothes. In the apartment next door, 2957, Peter Carpenter and wife and Mrs. MacCronin and her three children, Agnes, Bence and Nellie, became panic stricken. The shouts of alarm

John J. Haggerty, won the National Rifle Association medal for marksmanship at the shooting practice yesterday of Company I, Eighth Regiment at Lynn, by shooting forty-three out of a possible fifty. This makes him champion of his company. The distance was 200 yards and the aim was off hand.

STOPS ITCHING AT ONCE.

The dispensers of poslam, the new skin remedy, depend almost entirely, in making known its merits, upon the wonderful results which they demonstrate through experimental samples which are sent free by mail to all who write to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West 25th street, New York City. Poslam stops the itching attending eczema with its first application.

A special 50-cent package of poslam, now on sale at Houghton & Dutton's, Riker-Jaynes and other leading drug stores in Boston, is usually sufficient to cure minor skin troubles, such as pimples, blackheads, rash, tetter, herpes, etc.

STOCKS STRONG IN WALL STREET

By Thomas C. Shotwell.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—A quiet but strong market was seen in the early part of the session in Wall street. Opening prices averaged almost a point above the closing of Wednesday. London, which had been making lower quotations over the holiday, turned and showed an advancing market just before the New York opening. It was reported that some of the heavy traders increased their line of long stocks on Wednesday and were once more in favor of an upward swing.

The coal shares seemed to be the leaders in the early trading, but business was so light that there was no distinct trend or any decisive leadership. Erie, which had been sold freely on announcement of the bond issue Wednesday, recovered a fraction. Silver metal declined again in London, but silver stocks on the New York curb were strong under leadership of La Rose and Nipissing. Goldfield Consolidated was stronger than for many weeks, the reason being the near aproach of the opening date for the mill at Goldfield.

There was moderate realizing that shaded prices down about half a point in the general list, but on the reaction business almost entirely ceased.

PRICES UP ON STATE STREET

The opening on State street was strong with prices up frrom ¼ to ½ above Wednesday's close. Though the sales were smaller, buying was well scattered. Amalgamated Copper and Union Pacific were the most active. Consolidated Steamship 4s sold at 16⅞, and had little market.

CURB TO TRADE WITHIN DOORS

The Boston Curb Stock Exchange to-day signed a lease of the former Bond & Goodwin Building in Congress square, and one week from Monday will open there for business. For the first time in the history of the curb, trading will be done indoors.

There will be places, however, in the room for the public to attend the market. The lease on the Doane street property will be cancelled. The Curb has been enjoined by the Supreme Court from conducting its exchange in Doane street on account of the noise the traders make.

With the opening of the trading room, the governing committee of the Curb will form a new association. The Curb will be limited to 100 brokers, each membership will cost $500.

BARGAINS AT VORENBERG'S

The weather may be pleasant to-day and to-morrow, but the cold, bleak rains, the chilling snows and the howling winds of Winter are coming, and Vorenberg's, at Washington, Hanover and Elm streets, is ready for the storms when they come and can prepare the people of Boston for them, too. The firm announces that rare bargains in Winter clothing at less really than what is generally called cost are offered in suits and overcoats.

How this cut in prices is possible is explained in the fact that Vorenberg's bought the entire stock of Shaw & Shelnwald of Summer street when this firm decided to retire from business. It is announced that the stock bought by Vorenberg's was at a price really less than the wholesale cost.

Now tempting bargains are offered in Winter clothing for men and at a most timely season, for usually this is not the time when cuts are made in the prices of heavy wear. There are all grades and prices of black and Oxford kerseys, Chesterfields, beavers, meltons and vicunas among the overcoats. There's a great assortment of raincoats and checks, worsteds, cheviots and herringbones among the suits offered for sale now at Vorenberg's.

The stock the firm guarantees. The styles need but to be seen to be recognized, and while everything is first class and up to date in every particular the prices are scaled away down on account of the manner in which the stock was purchased.

Charcoal Purifies Any Breath

And in Its Purest Form Has Long Been Known as the Greatest Gas Absorber.

Pure willow charcoal will oxidize almost any odor and render it sweet and pure. A panful in a foul cellar will absorb deadly fumes, for charcoal absorbs one hundred times its volume in gas.

The ancients knew the value of charcoal and administered it in cases of illness, especially pertaining to the stomach. In England to-day charcoal poultices are used for ulcers, boils, etc., while some physicians in Europe claim to cure many skin diseases by covering the afflicted skin with charcoal powder.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges go into the mouth and transfer foul odors at once into oxygen, absorb noxious gases and acids, and when swallowed mix with the digestive juices and stop gas making, fermentation and decay.

By their gentle qualities they control beneficially bowel action and stop diarrhoea and constipation.

Bad breath simply cannot exist when charcoal is used. There are no ifs or ands about this statement. Don't take our word for it, but look into the matter yourself. Ask your druggist or physician, or better still, look up charcoal in your encyclopedia. The beauty of Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges is that the highest pharmaceutical expert knowledge obtainable has been used to prepare a lozenge that will give to man the best form of charcoal for use.

Pure willow and honey is the result. Two or three after meals and at bedtime sweeten the breath, stop decay of teeth, aid the digestive apparatus and promote perfect bowel action. They enrich the supply of oxygen to the system and thereby revivify the blood and nerves.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are sold everywhere in vast quantities; thus they must have merit. Every druggist carries them, price twenty-five cents per box, or send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 200 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

AMERICANS LACK COMMON SENSE, SAYS WESTERNER

Told Well-Known New Yorker He Was Living Like a Fool So Far As His Stomach Was Concerned.

L. T. Cooper, who is at present explaining his medicines to the public of this city, and attracting a great deal of attention, thinks that Americans are lacking in common sense. Cooper claims that most ill-health is due to stomach disorders caused by improper living. When interviewed Thursday, he said:

"While modern conditions are largely responsible for many half-sick, rundown people in America today, lack of common sense can also be blamed.

"It is impossible to lead the active outdoor life that nature demands. It is impossible for many to exercise the body sufficiently to make the gastric juices wholly active and virile. It is impossible to spend as much time as we should in the fresh air and sunshine. But it is possible to treat a stomach already weakened by these facts with a little consideration.

"If the American people would think half as much of their stomachs as they do of their pocketbooks, there wouldn't be so much of this tired-all-the-time feeling.

"If we would sit down quietly to a plain, common sense meal, eat slowly, chew every mouthful thoroughly, and then give it time to digest, there wouldn't be so many droopy, listless, sallow-faced men and women. But we don't; we are a nation of bolters. We bolt our food and expect our stomachs to do the work our teeth were intended for. We rush through our meals as though to catch a train. Time is money. In consequence we are the richest nation on the face of the globe, but we are slowly becoming a lot of chronic dyspeptics.

"Our forefathers gave us two things—First, a glorious land with unlimited resources and opportunities. Second, sound constitutions, with good, healthy digestive organs. We are developing the first and letting the second go to ruin.

"The amount of half-chewed, hastily eaten food the average American stuffs into himself during the day is positively wicked. Then when he feels dull and nervous and tired he begins to imagine he has kidney trouble, or liver complaint, or heart trouble, or nerve exhaustion, or goodness knows what. There is just one thing the matter with him. He has abused the one organ in his body most essential to good health—the stomach—and until the gastric juices in his stomach perform their functions as they should, all the doctors between here and San Francisco will not make him well.

"The other day a man well known in New York, who takes almost no exercise and who is a big feeder, called on me and said, 'from what a friend tells me about your medicine I think it will help me—at least I am willing to give it a trial; but, supposing it does get my stomach in shape, how long will it last?' I replied: 'If you take Cooper's New Discovery, at the end of six weeks your food should be digested perfectly once more, and you will feel like another man. But if you continue to act like a fool, so far as what you eat and the way you eat it are concerned, you will be right back where you are now inside of six months.'

"What I said to this man can be applied to thousands just like him all over the country."

Cooper's New Discovery is a great medicine. Mr. Cooper has made an astonishing success with it. Now on sale at leading drug stores throughout the United States. Ask your druggist for it.

How To Reduce Fat

The Simplest, and Surest Way to Get Rid of Fat Without Drugs.

How to Prove It to Yourself Free.

There has recently been [illegible] the use of which has already [illegible] enormous benefit, and [illegible] in the saving of many lives.

This remedy is [illegible] called Rengo. The rate at which this remedy [illegible] and do it harmlessly and surely is truly remarkable. A pound a day is ordinarily [illegible], being done by compelling perfect assimilation of the food, and [illegible] it belongs.

The most remarkable feature of Rengo is that you can take all you want of it without running the slightest risk of harm. It can be chewed like candy and is pleasant to the taste.

Many physicians, who before were at a loss to know how to cure obesity, are now prescribing Rengo with remarkable success. It is a great nerve-strength producer, affecting digestion primarily, and inducing a general [illegible] of nerve and body. Wrinkles which appear in nearly every case of reduction of fat where injurious drugs and starvation process is tried, do not occur where Rengo is used.

There is nothing "just as good" as Rengo. For sale by all druggists at $1.00 per full sized box, or by mail prepaid, by The Rengo Co., 3212 Rengo Bldg., Detroit, Mich. The company will gladly send you a trial package free by mail if you write them direct to Detroit; no free packages at drug stores.

Rengo is for sale in Boston by Riker-Jaynes Drug Stores—7 in Boston; Hoeguers & Dutton Co., Henry Siegel Co., Washington and Essex sts., Woodward Drug Co., 108 Tremont St.; W. B. Hunt Co., 707 Washington St., 655 Mass. Ave., Cambridge, and 3 Pleasant St., Malden.

Cures Constipation

A free trial will convince you that Malto-Fruto is the most natural constipation cure known, because it contains tropical fruit juices, and everybody knows that there is nothing so quick and thorough in curing chronic constipation and weak, fagged nerves as a fruit treatment. You can eat and enjoy it like fruit or candy.

Full sized packages, 25 and 50c, at drug stores. If your druggist has not got it, send your remittance to the Rengo Co., Rengo Bldg., Detroit, Mich., and they will send it prepaid. You can get a trial package of Malto-Fruto free only by writing to the above address. No free packages at druggists.

SOCIETY WOMAN FINED $40 FOR SHOPLIFTING

Mrs. Clara J. Barney, wife of State Senator Milo W. Barney of Swanton, Vt., was fined $40 by Judge Murray in the Municipal Criminal Court to-day for stealing $24 worth of articles from Boston department stores. She was arrested last Tuesday by Inspector Patterson of headquarters. At that time she gave the name of Annie Smith.

When she was arraigned in court she confessed to stealing, but said she had been using morphine and was irresponsible. The judge saw from her costly clothing and furs and her demeanor that she was a society woman and urged her to send a telegram to her relatives and give her right name to the matrons, who would assist her. She agreed and the case was continued until to-day.

When her name was called this morning her husband was with her on one side, while on the other stood her pastor, the Rev. Dr. Hunt of the St. Albans Methodist Episcopal Church. Mrs. Barney shook with sobs. She was dressed entirely in black and never lifted her heavy black veiling.

Before passing sentence Judge Murray talked quietly with her husband and pastor for almost half an hour.

When she was taken out of court extreme precautions were made to keep the photographers from getting pictures of the convicted society woman. She was hurried out of a back door into the jail yard, where a taxicab was allowed to enter. Then, with her friends and husband, she was taken home.

Milo W. Barney is president of the Swanton National Bank and also of the Barney Granite Company and other corporations. He was in his office in Swanton when he got the telegram from his wife telling him she was in great trouble and asking him to send her a lot of money or to come to her himself. She wired that she could be found at No. 37 Somerset street—the city prison. The husband took the first train to Boston and gave the $200 bail, taking his wife home with him.

Her experience has left her a nervous wreck. Her husband will keep her under close observation under the Judge's advice until she has been restored to normal condition.

Via Wireless

(Special News Item.)

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—Thompson Buchanan' absorbing novel, from the sensationally successful play, "Via Wireless," begins in the BOSTON AMERICAN to-morrow. Don't miss the opening chapter.

BRUNETTES NEXT CONTEND FOR PRIZES

The man with the red mask and domino says he didn't realize how many really beautiful blondes there are in Greater Boston. He has been seeking out candidates for the beauty contest at the Great Winter Garden, and he allows that every pretty light-haired girl he meets is prettier than the last one.

Presently the brunette beauty contest will begin at the Great Winter Garden, even while the judges are deciding to whom will be paid the cash prizes of $25 which go to the winners in the competition of the blondes.

Meanwhile Dezitd and West are electrifying audiences afternoon and evening in their high wire performance in which one of them rides a single wheel along a tight wire sustaining the weight of the other, who does trapeze stunts suspended fifty feet in the air. The performance lasts fifteen minutes and is full of thrills.

Oscar V. Babcock's act, Looping the Death-Trap and Jumping the Gap twice daily, continues through this week. A third feature in the entertainment is the grand illusion constructed under the north gallery, the head of a beautiful woman suspended in a huge spider's web, its presence unaccounted for as viewed with amazement by the most ingenious enquirers.

Next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN will publish another set of free tickets for the Great Winter Garden for use on Monday and Tuesday following, giving free admission to the Garden and the great spectacles and half-fare tickets to many shows.

RICHARDS HAS HOT REPLY FOR HIBBARD

President J. L. Richards of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, in a letter to Mayor Hibbard, made public today by the gas company, takes the Mayor to task for statements made about the gas company in a speech made before the New York City Club November 23.

The Mayor charged that the city was paying $250,000 a year to repair damages to the streets done by the gas and other companies. He said it cost the city $17,000 to maintain a permit office, the chief function of which is to issue permits for street openings to the gas and other companies. He declared that it costs the city $18,000 to pay inspectors for seeing that the gas company installs its pipes properly.

President Richards, in his letter, charges the Mayor with "misstatements of facts" generally, and with reference to the city paying for gas pipe inspectors declares that "this is not only misleading and unjust, but is wholly untrue."

In speaking about the alleged damage done by the gas company to the streets, President Richards says:

"As a matter of fact, the Boston Consolidated Gas Company is obliged in every instance to leave the surface of the street in as good condition as it was before the opening was made, and in some cases, where asphalt block paving, etc., is used, the superintendent of streets requires the work to be done by a contractor to be named by him, and the bills rendered by this contractor are paid by the gas company."

With reference to the permits granted the gas company, President Richards says that the work done for the gas company by this department of the city is but a small part of the work of the department.

CROUP QUICKLY CURED

Dont' Let the Child Choke to Death While Waiting for the Doctor.

Croup should have prompt treatment. The life of many a dear one has been sacrificed because the right remedy was not at hand.

Pay close attention to the child who is feverish, thirsty, and occasionally coughs dryly and shrilly. This is the first stage of croup, and instant treatment should be given.

Hyomei, the miraculous, antiseptic dry air treatment, will cure croup in either the first or second stages. Easily inhaled, even when the breathing is irregular, it reaches more promptly than any other remedy the teribly inflamed membrane of the windpipe. Its soothing balsams act immediately, the inflammation is allayed, and the swelling reduced.

"Not long ago our little boy, Walter, awoke in the night with a bad attack of croup, so that he experienced great difficulty in breathing. We allowed him to inhale Hyomei, and he immediately began to breathe easier, and in half an hour was fast asleep. Our children being subject to croup, we feel safe with Hyomei in the house, and I am glad to speak a good word for a remedy that will rob croup of its terrors."—Rev. Geo. Sisson, Pastor of M. E. Church, South Londonderry, Vt.

Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) is the quickest acting and most sensible remedy ever discovered for all diseases of the nose, throat and lungs. It is guaranteed by Jaynes Drug Co. to cure catarrh, coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis and croup, or money back. A complete outfit, including a neat hard rubber pocket inhaler, costs only $1.00. An extra bottle of Hyomei, if afterwards needed, costs but 50 cents.

BILLEK'S FATE KILLS MOTHER

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—Mrs. Barbara Billek, mother of Herman Billek, condemned to be hanged two weeks from to-day, died to-day in her home in Cleveland, O., literally killed by the awful fate impending over her son. The news, brought from Cleveland in dispatches, was taken to Billek, who collapsed with grief in his cell at the county jail. Mrs. Billek had been in failing health for some time, and fell in a dead faint when she received a pathetic letter of farewell from her doomed son on Wednesday, in which he said that he had given up all hope and must die on the gallows. She was put to bed and given the best of medical attention. She weakened steadily, however, till her death came in the early hours to-day.

Well-Known Teacher and the Girls Aiding Her in European Tour Contest

Miss Helena Tortorella, a ninth district candidate in Boston Sunday American's European Tour Contest, is fourth from the left in the bottom row. Back of her and around her are the friends who are aiding her in gathering coupons. From snapshot taken at Parker Memorial Hall yesterday afternoon.

DANCE IN AID OF FAIR TOUR CONTESTANT

Girl Friends of Helen Tortorella Start Active Campaign in Her Behalf.

Miss Helena Tortorella, candidate in District No. 9 in the BOSTON AMERICAN European Tour contest for Sunday school teachers, gave a pretty sunlight dancing party in aid of her candidacy yesterday at Parker Memorial Hall.

Several hundred friends of the popular young woman were present and the affair was a decided success. The hall was prettily decorated, and an orchestra of ten pieces, which furnished music, was screened in a corner behind a bank of potted plants and palms.

Miss Tortorella was the centre of attraction all afternoon. As a token of their esteem friends showered her with ballots and special ballots to aid her in the contest, and dozens of them pledged united support in the effort that will be made to land her in first place in her district.

A feature of the afternoon was an "affinity" dance just before the close. Much credit for the success of the party is due to J. Goldberg, who has assumed charge of the popular teacher's campaign and is confident she will win the grand tour in the Ninth District.

The BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN will have another important announcement for candidates and the friends of candidates in the contest. EVERYONE OF THEM WILL WANT TO READ IT.

Voting for this week will close at 1 p. m. Saturday.

Cheerful days—the days when you take Cascarets. Isn't it wonderful what a difference one little candy tablet makes?

We all need a laxative sometimes.

How often we need it depends entirely on how we live.

If we exercise largely, and eat the right food, we need a laxative only occasionally.

But if we live in-doors, and get too little laxative effect in our food, we may need to get it quite frequently in some other way.

Nobody can doubt the need for a laxative. The only question is: Which one is the best?

And that isn't a question now.

Cascarets are known to embody the only laxative which acts in a gentle and natural way.

Castor oil merely greases the bowels.

Cathartics and salts, acting as pepper acts in the nostrils, flush the bowels with fluids.

But those fluids are digestive juices, and we will lack them tomorrow if we waste them today.

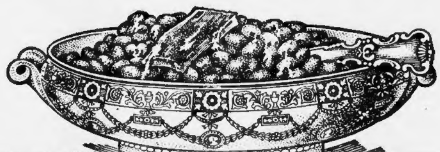

Cascarets alone cause the muscles of the bowels to act the same as some foods will do.

Carry them with you. Take one when you need it. You will then enjoy all the good effects of keeping the bowels clean.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure you get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The price is 50c, 25c and

Nutty—Mealy—Whole

Please learn what a difference there is between home-baked beans and Van Camp's.

But don't deem it your fault, for it isn't.

We have spent 47 years in learning how to perfect this dish. This is our specialty—our one claim to supremacy. We bake tens of millions of cans every year.

No wonder we best know how.

Then we have the facilities, and you lack them all. So the difference isn't all in the skill.

Beans, to be digestible, must be factory cooked.

The heat of your oven is far from sufficient. It can't break up the food granules so the digestive juices can get to them. So home-baked beans are hard to digest, even for the strongest stomach.

Our ovens are heated to 245 degrees.

That's more than twice the heat that gets to the center of your baking dish. We apply that fierce heat for 90 minutes, and the result is our beans are digestible.

That is a very important fact.

Then we bake in live steam—not in dry heat. And we do our baking after the cans are sealed.

That's why our beans are all baked alike. No beans are crisped, no skins are broken. They are baked until they are mealy, yet they are nutty because they are whole.

Perhaps the one thing missed most in home-baked beans is that delicious, nutty flavor. Nobody likes beans mushy; everybody wants them whole.

Then we bake the beans, the tomato sauce and the pork all together, and get our delicious blend. To bake the tomato sauce into the beans is a very different thing from adding it afterwards.

Van Camp's come to you, fresh and savory, ready for instant serving. No work and no waiting. A dozen cans in the house mean a dozen meals all cooked. And such delicious meals! After all your work, your home-baked beans are never half so good.

Van Camp's PORK AND BEANS BAKED WITH TOMATO SAUCE

Once let your folks taste Van Camp's beans and they'll frown if you serve them others. That nutty flavor, that tang and zest, are missing in minor brands. Please learn how good beans can be. Then we shall not need to say again, "Insist on Van Camp's."

84% Nutriment

Beans are Nature's choicest food—23 per cent nitrogenous; 84 per cent nutriment.

Like meat in their food value, but not like it in cost. See how many you get for 10 cents.

They should be a daily dish—not an occasional. They are appetizing and hearty; all people like them.

Perhaps you serve beans once a week now, because they are hard to prepare. Or because your people like other things better when beans are not rightly cooked.

'Twill be different when you serve Van Camp's.

You will serve them for breakfast—in croquettes or with ham. You'll serve them for luncheons—steaming hot. You'll serve them for dinners—in salad.

You will hardly be able to serve them too often, for people don't tire of Van Camp's.

We Pay Most

We use only the whitest and plumpest Michigan beans.

They are picked out by hand from the choicest part of the crop. We pay for such beans from six to seven times what some beans would cost.

We use only sound, vine-ripened tomatoes.

Cheap sauce is made from tomatoes picked green, and ripened in shipment. Or of scraps from a canning factory.

We could buy such sauce ready-made for exactly one-fifth what we spend to make ours. But it would lack that richness, that sparkling zest, which Nature gives to Van Camp's.

No wonder that some brands sell cheaper than ours, yet pay your grocer more profit.

But the best beans are cheap enough. They are even most economical. For you will eat more beans, in place of meat, when you serve Van Camp's.

Prices: 10, 15 and 20 cents per can

PROCTER & GAMBLE NAPHTHA SOAP

This Is The Way To Wash

With P. & G. Naphtha Soap. Try it, next washday.

WHITE CLOTHES:—Dip each piece in lukewarm water. Rub soap on the soiled parts and roll up. Pack rolls in a tub and cover with lukewarm (not hot) water. Let them soak half an hour or longer. Fill a tub half full of lukewarm (not hot) water; unroll each piece and rub soiled parts on the washboard, using fresh soap. The dirt will come out with little or no rubbing. Rinse in two warm waters and blue in a third cooler water. Excepting in cases of sickness, clothes need not be boiled. Hang them up to dry in sunshine and fresh air.

Isn't this simpler and easier and better than your present method? And wouldn't it be a good idea to try P.&G. Naphtha Soap and see if it really is as effective as we say it is?

The experiment costs little—a five cent cake is ample for a week's washing.

P. & G. Naphtha Soap 5 cents a cake. 43

BABY BOY HAD ITCHING HUMOR

Which Broke Out In Different Places —Nothing Would Help Him— Mother Almost in Despair—Skin Quickly Healed Without a Scar and Trouble Has Never Returned

SINCE USING CUTICURA MOTHER GIVES IT PRAISE

"Several months ago, my little boy, now two and a half years old, began to break out with itching sores. I began to doctor him, and as soon as I got them healed up in one place they would break out in another. I was almost in despair. I could not get anything that would help him. One evening I read a testimonial from a lady who had cured her little boy with Cuticura. I began to use the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, and after using them three times, the sores commenced to heal. He is now well, and not a scar is left on his body. They have never returned nor left him with bad blood, as one would think. Cuticura Remedies are the best I have ever tried, and they are surely great. I shall always have them in the house, handy, and shall highly recommend them to any one who is suffering likewise. I cannot give them too much praise. Mrs. William Geeding, 102 Washington St., Attica, Ind., July 22, 1907."

ITCHING TORMENTS

From little patches of eczema, tetter, milk crust, psoriasis, etc., on the skin, scalp, or hands of infants, children, or adults are instantly relieved and speedily cured, in the majority of cases, by warm baths with Cuticura Soap and gentle anointings with Cuticura Ointment, the great Skin Cure, assisted, when necessary, by mild doses of Cuticura Resolvent. Cuticura Remedies are guaranteed absolutely pure.

BOSTON ELEVATED

TO OUR PATRONS

Return of Tremont Street and Shawmut Avenue Surface Cars to Subway

CHANGES

Boylston Street lines. All north bound passengers may change at Boylston Street station or Park Street station to cars from which they may transfer at Scollay Square to surface-subway cars north and at North Station to Elevated trains for Charlestown and Atlantic Avenue.

Columbus Avenue lines will pass eastward through Berkeley and Tremont Streets, entering the subway at Pleasant Street for North Station.

A Columbus Avenue line will be run via Eliot, Washington and Summer Streets and Atlantic Avenue to Rowe's Wharf.

Tremont Street lines will be run from Jamaica Plain, Brookline, Roxbury Crossing and Lenox Street to North Station via Subway. Tremont Street-East Boston Ferry line will be diverted to Washington Street via Dover Street and will perform all the Hanover Street service.

Shawmut Avenue lines will run to North Station via subway.

Washington Street lines will run to Franklin Street and North Station.

Washington Street tunnel train service will be substituted for all through lines of surface cars between Roxbury and Charlestown.

Spring Hill, Winter Hill and Bunker Hill cars will be run to the Scollay Square subway station.

The use of the Washington Street tunnel will greatly augment the facilities for transportation and its kindred conveniences which our system already provides, but the removal of the elevated trains from the subway to this tunnel (required by law) will necessarily involve many changes, both with respect to the elevated trains themselves and to the routes of surface cars. These changes will be of great advantage to the majority of our patrons, but during the transition period there will be undoubtedly some annoying incidents. The officials of the company will do everything feasible to make things run smoothly, but the company asks the co-operation of its patrons and a further share of that consideration with which they have favored the company in the past, and which the company has been glad to reciprocate. When the changes have been made, and both passengers and employees have become accustomed to them, facilities will be much superior to those now existing.

WHITE'S BIG OVERCOAT SALE

This is the overcoat time of year and usually the dealers get all they can for them in the Fall and early Winter. But the R. H. White Company isn't hidebound, so when it came into possession of $16,000 worth of overcoats, part of the stock of Strouse & Brothers of Baltimore, on good terms, it decided to cut the price right in two for Boston people, even if it was at the beginning of the season.

That's why the R. H. White Company declares that for the rest of to-day and to-morrow astonishing bargains are being offered in the big clothing department of their store. Something happened right before the store closed Wednesday night that shows what these overcoats and prices are like.

A well-known Boston overcoat manufacturer, happening to be in the big clothing department of the store, noticed the great piles of overcoats displayed on all sides. He asked about them and was told the R. H. White Company had bought out the stock of Strouse & Brothers of Baltimore. Then he found at what prices this Friday and Saturday sale was to be conducted. He commenced to look at the overcoats carefully and remarked time and again at the bargains and what a great chance it was for anyone wanting to buy a fine overcoat very cheap. He said, as he handled one coat long and carefully and handed it to a clerk:

"I had just selected the material and was about to have a new Winter overcoat made in my own shop for me, but this coat here is cheaper than I can manufacture it. I will take this coat."

LYNN DENTIST DISAPPEARS

Special to the Boston American.

LYNN, Nov. 27.—The mysterious disappearance from this city of Dr. Guy W. Gammon, who was associated with his father, Dr. Nathaniel Gammon, in one of the best dental practices, with fine offices at No. 19 Market street, is occasioning much comment.

None has seen him since the early Fall. At first nothing was thought of his absence, but as friends continued to ask for him the guarded replies made excited suspicion. Mrs. Gammon was asked at her handsome home, No. 601 Western avenue, where her husband could be reached. She said she really did not know, but he was somewhere in the middle West. His friends say he has decided to locate there.

Once the balloon rose to a height of more than 7,000 feet, and the aeronauts saw rainbows in the clouds.

'I HAD A DANDY TIME,' SAYS BOY CARRIED TO SEA

Twelve-year-old Francis Spencer, who made an unexpected trip from Boston to Liverpool and return as an uninvited guest of the Cunard Steamship Company on its big steamer Ivernia, to-day rushed into the arms of his mother, Mrs. Minnie Spencer, at their home, No. 17 Boylston street, Jamaica Plain, for they had not seen each other since November 3.

"Oh, Mamma! I'm so glad to see you, but I had such a fine time!" were the double-shotted exclamations of the happy youngster as he and his mother kissed each other and cried for joy.

Just think of this boy's experiences and his luck!

Colonel George B. Billings, Immigration Commissioner of Boston, actually made a special trip to the Ivernia in his launch, Marietta, to get the little chap and to turn him over to his anxious mother.

Francis was carried out to sea on the Ivernia on November 3, when he was below decks bidding a chum good-by who was going to Sweden. When he came above he found the ship was away down the harbor, and there was no chance to get away. A full fare ticket of his fourteen-year-old chum was not sufficient to carry the two boys over together, so Captain Benison listed Francis as a stowaway and allowed him to do a little work in the galley.

The captain did better than that, for he sent Mrs. Spencer a wireless message, telling her not to worry about her boy.

In Liverpool Francis had a fine time at the expense of the Cunard Company, and when he came back he was listed a member of her crew.

"Are we going to take a ride around the harbor," demanded the boy of Commissioner Billings with a look of disappointment in his face as the launch sped away from the steamer.

"Don't you want to take a ride?" asked the Colonel.

"No, I want to go to mamma as fast as I can," he said, and his face brightened as he saw the launch point her nose toward Boston. "I had a fine time. I don't think Liverpool is as nice a city as Boston, but they do have bigger ships there, the biggest I ever saw.

"I'm going to be a sailor after I get through school. I love the sea and wasn't a bit seasick. Liverpool is a funny old city. Those two-storied street cars are strange. Then the coster carts and their donkeys and ponies are odd, too.

"I was treated fine by Captain Benison and his crew. I had a dandy time, but am awfully glad to get home."

BRANDEIS WILL ADDRESS CIVIC FEDERATION

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Chairman Ralph Easley of the executive committee of the National Civic Federation makes the announcement that President-elect and Mrs. William Howard Taft will be the guests of honor at the annual meeting of the federation in New York, December 14 to 15, in the Hotel Astor.

"The theme of this meeting," he says, "will be the promotion of friendly relations between employers and employes, and the consideration of measures for the welfare of the working people. Some of the vital questions to be considered are:

"How may the employe and his family be protected against financial stringency in case of accident, illness or death?

"Shall this country follow England by providing old age pensions for dependent citizens?

"Shall the Massachusetts voluntary savings bank annuity plan, designed to encourage thrift and providence, be generally advocated in the United States, or will the need in this country be met by the establishment of postal savings banks?

"Shall the State or the employer, or the State, employer and employe jointly as in Germany, bear the burden incident to death or bodily injury of employes?

"Are there trade agreements between organizations of employers and organizations of employes that can be regarded as conspiracies in restraint of trade under the Sherman act?

"Should trade agreements with public service corporations contain provisions for arbitration of all disputes before striking?

"The first day will be devoted to the discussion of the trade agreement as a means of promoting industrial peace and commercial prosperity. This discussion will be led by John Mitchell, chairman of that department. He will be followed by William C. Brown, vice-president of the New York Central; Herman Ridder, president of the American Publishers' Association, and others.

"The discussions on the second day, which includes 'Industrial insurance, pensions, employers' liability and the salary loan evil' will be opened by Louis D. Brandeis, who secured the enactment of the law for the Massachusetts savings bank plan for industrial insurance.

MAXINE WILL BUILD THEATRE IN BOSTON

A counterpart of Maxine Elliott's new theatre in New York is to be built by the celebrated actress in Boston, according to an announcement made in behalf of Miss Elliott.

The location of the proposed theatre is undetermined, but it is said that it will resemble the Maxine Elliott Theatre in New York in every respect. That playhouse is an attractive two-story marble front building.

Miss Elliott is ambitious to own a string of theatres, to be run under her own management in conjunction with the Shuberts.

WORTH MIXING FOR KIDNEY AND BLADDER AFFLICTIONS

More people succumb each year to some form of kidney trouble than any other cause. The slightest form of kidney derangement often develops into Bright's kidney disease, diabetes or dropsy. When either of these diseases are suspected the sufferer should at once seek the best medical attention possible. Consult only a good, first-class physician.

There are many of the lesser symptoms of kidney trouble which can be treated at home is stated by a well-known authority. For some of these, such as backache, pain in the region of the kidneys, weak bladder, frequency (especially at night), painful scalding and other urinary troubles, try the following simple home remedy: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. These simple ingredients are harmless and can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy and anyone can mix them by shaking well in a bottle. The dose for adults is a teaspoonful after each meal and again at bedtime.

There is no more effective remedy known to relieve all forms of rheumatism, because it acts directly upon the kidneys and blood. It cleans the clogged up pores in the kidneys so they can filter and strain from the blood the poisonous uric acid and waste matter which if not eliminated remain in the blood, decompose and settle about the joints and muscular tissues causing the untold suffering and deformity of rheumatism.

Backache is nature's signal notifying the sufferer that the kidneys are not acting properly. "Take care of your kidneys," is now the physician's advice to his patients.

It is an old story now that nervous people tell of how the blood became thin and poor and then the nervous symptoms followed.

How many correctly guess that the thin blood was responsible for the nervous disorder?

The nerves get all their nourishment through the blood and as thin blood is deficient in nerve-building material, the nerves become starved. Pain and nervous breakdown result.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

are a tonic for the blood that supply it with the necessary elements to nourish and tone up the nerves and, the cause being removed, nature does the rest and health is restored.

SAYS BEAUTY WAS DESTROYED BY OPERATION

Mrs. Clara B. Chisholm of New York, a magazine editor, has brought suit for $25,000 damages against a "physical improvement" institution for alleged injury to her eyesight and destruction of her beauty by an operation.

Mrs. Chisholm says she was told that a surgical operation, quite painless, would entirely remove some crow's feet from around her eyes. She paid several hundred dollars and submitted to, she says, a painful operation, the cuticle flesh under and around the eyes being cut away and the crows' feet removed.

But she soon found that the lower lids of the eyes were drawn downward so as to destroy her good looks. She also found that the tear ducts had been destroyed and that tears continually ran from her eyes. A physician told her that she was probably permanently injured.

From that time Mrs. Chisholm has never appeared upon the street without a heavy veil. She has retired from all social activities.

The attorney for the institute denies that there is any cause for action, and says that the operation was skilfully and successfully performed.

D'ABRUZZI WILL TRY THE ALPS

ROME, Nov. 27.—It is reported to-day that the Duke d' Abruzzi has left Turin and has gone to Courmayour. It is said he is to undertake during the Winter an ascent of the Alps with the famous guide, Petigat, who accompanied the Duke on his North polar expedition.

"Man Is As Old As His Stomach"

This Persian Epigram Is the Real Gauge of a Man's Life.

The Persians were a very sagacious people, noted, among other things, for their deep thinking on life and the things which make up life.

The above epigram shows the wisdom of their thought.

When a man's stomach is able to furnish new material to the system as fast or faster than the natural decay of man requires, then such a man lives his fullest and his best.

When, through wrong living or disease, a man's stomach begins to tax the other organs and takes from the blood strength which it cannot give back in nourishment taken from food, then begins the death of man and he decays fast. The stomach is strong, splendidly strong, and can stand an untold amount of abuse and neglect, but when it dies, man dies.

The stomach gives tons upon tons of good rich blood every year to the system and draws only 680 lbs. of nourishment for its own use. If, however, the food which it receives cannot be turned into blood which is capable of use by the body, then the stomach receives no help from the other organs.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain the most perfect digestive qualities known to science and at the same time the most powerful. They will mix with the poisonous juices of a sick stomach and digest food in spite of this handicap.

They will stop gas making and bad breath. They tone up the nerves of the whole digestive canal, including those of the stomach.

A single ingredient contains strength enough to digest 3,000 times its weight in mixed food.

They have stood the test of time and to-day are more sought after than all their imitators combined.

They are used and endorsed by 40,000 phyicians. Every druggist sells them, price 50c. It costs nothing to demonstrate their value. Send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

GOV. HIGGINS COUNTS OUT HIS BRIDE

PITTSBURG, Nov. 27.—Governor Stuart of Pennsylvania and Governor Swanson of Virginia have played a low-down trick on Governor Higgins of Rhode Island and his bride, formerly Miss Ellen Maguire, who are here on their honeymoon.

It took place on Thanksgiving Day, and if ever Governor Higgins catches his two jokers within the confines of Little Rhody he will give them something to be thankful for or his name is not Higgins.

Governor Higgins and his bride, still in the first blissful happiness of their wedding tour, slipped quietly into Hotel Schenley yesterday afternoon, registered and went to their room. The stalwart young bridegroom, who is youthful if he is Governor, came back into the lobby for a moment, never thinking that he would be recognized.

"Hello Governor Higgins," said a voice. Higgins wheeled and found himself shaking hands with Governor Stuart of this State.

"I'll just a say a word or two about being here on personal business," thought Higgins, "then I'll get away. He doesn't know I'm just married."

"This is Pittsburg's sesquicentennial," said Stuart cheerfully, "you're just in time. We need all the distinguished men we can get. Why, it's just providential, my finding you here."

Dear Old Sesquicentennial.

"Sesquicentennial be ——, I mean, you'll have to excuse me just now, Governor, I'm engaged on pressing business. I ——."

"No, you don't," shouted Stuart, "you don't lose us that way. I'd never back out on you. You know I wouldn't. Here's the Mayor. I want you—here, Mayor Guthrie, this is Governor Higgins of Rhode Island, the youngest Governor in the land."

Mayor Guthrie was delighted to meet Governor Higgins. Mayor Guthrie was overflowing with stories of the sesquicentennial.

"—— the sesquicentennial," thought Higgins. "I'll get a sesquicentennial from Mrs. Higgins if I don't come back pretty soon. I'll make a break to get away. Gentlemen, I really——."

"Governor Higgins," boomed Stuart, "here is Governor Swanson of Virginia."

The latter, who was attending the celebration, said:

"Glad to see you are attending the sesquicentennial of this fair city of our sister State. It is especially gratifying to have a Governor from the North. Did you bring a party with you?" concluded Swanson with childlike innocence.

"Wonder if they really know," reflected Higgins with inward qualms, then aloud: "Oh, no, I am alone—that is—I am here on business."

"State affairs?" inquired Swanson cheerfully.

"No, that is, not exactly, it's——."

"Come on, Higgins," interrupted Stuart, "we have a place for you on the speakers' platform in the Exhibition Hall. Exercises going to open right away. You must say a few words, too——."

"I can't," gasped the horrified Higgins, thinking of the desolate bride up above.

Telephone His Preserver.

"Can't, nonsense," protested Stuart, "you've said you're just here on business. You can't get anyone in Pittsburg to talk business to-day. And you're alone, you said. Is there anyone here who has a better claim on you this minute than I have? I tell you, Higgins, it isn't courteous, you know. Think what they would say if I didn't show proper attention to a visiting brother Governor. Come, you're unattached, aren't you?"

"I wonder," thought the unhappy Higgins, "if he actually knows. (Aloud) Well, you see, I——."

He was dragged off, protesting, to the Exhibition Hall, where he was introduced to all the notables in sight. Everyone talked about the sesquicentennial.

Sheer desperation drove Higgins to an inspiration.

"Where's the nearest telephone," he almost yelled at Stuart. "I must call up——."

"Want to telephone a man," asked Stuart with an angel face grin.

"—— his innocent eyes. I'll bet he's wise," thought Higgins, then to Stuart, "Yes, and I want to call him quick."

They led him to a telephone booth. Higgins closed the soundproof door, got the hotel operator on the wire, was connected with his room and——

It is unofficially known now that the Governor-bridegroom managed to make his peace with the forlorn bride. Also, he manager to get away from his tormentors a few minutes later.

"I saw in the dispatches that Higgins was married and coming South on his honeymoon," says Governor Stuart to-day. "I never hoped for such luck as to catch him this way, though I'll bet the rest of his wedding trip Higgins keeps away from sesquicentennials."

Stuart is a bachelor. If he weds he won't go to Rhode Island on his honeymoon.

John W. Skelley Quit Police Work After 35 Years

RACED "BIKE COPS."

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 27.—Dr. George Ellery Hale, an eminent astronomer, was fined here to-day for speeding his automobile. He told the court he thought the "bike cops" wanted a race.

Restorative Treatment for Nervous Men

Undoubtedly the following prescription will work wonders for that great class of men who, through illness or overtaxing of their natural strength, find themselves in their second childhood long before the three-score and ten allotted to life's enjoyments are reached.

Coming from a source of unquestioned authority on the ailments of men, it is presumed to be infallible, and the profession generally endorse the ingredients as highly efficient in quickly restoring in nervous exhaustion, melancholia and the functions of the body. It is published now with the full authority of the originator for the benefit of the shipwrecked lives that find life not worth the living, and who have been unsuccessfully treated.

First, get fifty cents' worth compound fluid balmwort in a one ounce package, and three ounces syrup sarsaparilla compound; take home, mix and let stand two hours; then get one ounce compound essence cardiol and one ounce tincture cadomene (not cardamom). Mix all in a six or eight ounce bottle, shake well and take one teaspoonful after each meal and one when retiring, followed by a drink of water. It is said by those who have been treated that astonishing nerve power and vigor follow.

By mixing it at home no man need be the wiser as to another's shortcomings, and expensive fees are avoided.

Most druggists keep these ingredients on hand. If they cannot be readily procured the Prescription Products Co., Dayton, Ohio, who prepare guaranteed extracts, essences, etc., especially for prescription filling, will doubtless supply them.

35 YEARS ON POLICE FORCE NOW RETIRES

Following the death of Sergeant Daniel R. Connihan of the East Cambridge police force and the retirement of Patrolman John W. Skelley of the same station, several changes were made in the department.

To succeed Sergeant Connihan, Mayor Wardwell named Patrolman Charles F. Aberle.

After thirty-five years of faithful service in the Cambridge police department, Patrolman John W. Skelley was retired on a half-pay pension. Patrolman Skelley was born in Roxbury May 23, 1838, and was educated in the public schools of Boston.

For twenty years previous to his appointment as a police officer he worked as a glass worker.

He was made a patrolman on February 23, 1874, by Mayor Isaac Bradford. For fifteen years he had charge of the prisoner's van and was dock officer at the Cambridge District Court.

KILLED AS HE SLEPT ON TRACK

DANVERS, Nov. 27.—A man, not positively identified, but thought to be William Luscomb of Salem, was killed by a Lawrence trolley at Hone station, Middleton district, last night. He was decapitated and so badly mutilated that the features were unrecognizable. From the general build, however, and the clothes the body is thought to be that of Luscomb, who has been visiting his sister at Danversport recently.

He was evidently asleep on the track. He was run over before the car could be stopped.

KETCHEL DEFEATS PAPKE IN THE ELEVENTH ROUND

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

'EDELL CHALLENGES ANY IN MOTOR-PACED BICYCLE RACE

Ketchel Cleverly Turns the Tables

PAPKE IS BADLY BEATEN

BY W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27.—According to the rules of the prize ring, Stanley Ketchel will receive the credit of knocking out Billy Papke in the eleventh round of their fight at Coffroth's Arena. Papke, however, was merely knocked out by time, and might have continued a little longer if he had not become confused in regard to the counting.

He had been sent to the floor twice, and on the second occasion he rested on one hand and one knee and looked up at Referee Welsh in a half-dazed way.

He was stung to the quick by the fierce smashes he had received from the Michigan wonder, but it certainly looked as though his intelligence was intact enough to realise that the seconds were being tolled off in a loud voiced way by the veteran time keeper, George Harting.

Papke in Daze.

Welsh was merely keeping time with his hand to Harting's shouting.

"Eight, nine, ten" and then "eleven" yelled Harting, throwing in an extra second for good measure, but still the Illinois Thunderbolt knelt and gazed at Welsh in a dreamy manner.

Ketchel was standing close by and Welsh gave him a slap on the shoulder, saying at the same time, "You win."

Then Papke, of Illinois, arose and looked at Welsh reproachfully, as though to say, "How could you do it?"

Just what influenced Papke to remain down is best known to himself, for it is possible that the conductors on the street cars whizzing by the avenue heard Harting counting. He made full use of his lungs and tongue.

Those who saw the fight came away wondering how on earth Papke did for Ketchel so completely at Los Angeles. The Illinois man showed none of his thunderbolt attributes at any stage of the proceedings.

The best that can be said for him on to-day's showing is that he possesses a fair degree of the endurance that has made Battling Nelson famous. He can stand a lot of battering, but scarcely with the same fortitude as the Dane. He was plainly discouraged several times during the fight.

The only round in which Papke flattered the hopes of his backers for a few brief seconds was in the ninth. Ketchel had been crowding his opponent from corner to corner and bending him across the ropes, the while smashing in fierce body punches with both gloves. At one point Ketchel was leaning on his opponent at the confines of the ring and digging the left into the midsection.

Papke by a quick twitch pulled clear and hopped to midring. He threw himself into fighting position and as Ketchel went at him, let go a curving right hander for the face. It caught Ketchel on the bridge of the nose and was the hardest punch the Michigan man received up to that time. The blood spread over Ketchel's lips and chin and glistened in the sun.

Ketchel Comes Back.

But though Ketchel bled he was neither dazed nor daunted. He tore at the Thunderbolt, flying the red drops from his face as he went and let go a wicked left hander for the head. The blow was almost spent before it reached Papke's jaw, but at that it was hard enough to turn the Thunderbolt to the right about.

Papke, while making an effort to get out of range of another such clout tripped and fell. When he arose Ketchel pressed in on him and hammered him with both gloves and at no time after that did Papke display a glimmer of winning form.

Ketchel Nervous.

It was noticed that Ketchel, who is generally very cool before a fight, was extremely nervous. Papke seemed far the more composed of the two. Ketchels' hands were bound with black adhesive tape, and Papke's with white.

When Papke stripped he showed up scant fighting clothes. He wore an elastic breechclout, black shoes and green socks. Ketchel wore loose red fighting breeks, black shoes and socks. They posed for the photographers. Ketchel then examined Papke's gloves, which appeared satisfactory to him.

ROUND ONE.

They came close together and commenced slugging. They clinched and Papke got in a right uppercut. They clinched again. Papke put a left and right on the face. Ketchel forced him to the ropes and landed a left hook. Papke put in a left facer, and Ketchel a right on the temple. They clinched. Papke was the surer hitter. They swayed around quite a while without striking a blow. Papke got in a left hook on the jaw and Ketchel got in a hard left hook on the stomach and on the face. Papke staggered into a corner and covered up. Ketchel smashed him in the stomach and over the kidneys with the left. It looked bad for Papke.

ROUND TWO.

Ketchel let fly with a right. It was a glancing blow, and they clinched. Papke shot in a straight left and Ketchel a right on the ribs. Papke put in a straight left on the mouth and Ketchel brought blood from the nose with a left counter. Ketchel hurt Papke with left and right body blows, forcing him to the ropes. Papke drew back from a right and landed a hard right on the mouth. Ketchel put in a left body blow, and they clinched and worked into a corner. Ketchel's defence was poor. He was short with the right and Papke gave him a hard right on the chin. While they clinched at the ropes Papke brought in a hard uppercut with the right, and Ketchel smashed him with right and left on the body.

ROUND THREE.

Both men sparred carefully. Papke landed on the stomach with a left and they clinched. Each landed a left on the face. Ketchel blocked overhand rights and they clinched again. Ketchel backed his man on the ropes with body blows and they clinched again. Papke shot in short rights on the stomach while holding. Papke got in a light left facer on the break. Papke sent in a left on the mouth and they clinched again. Billy got in a left jolt on the jaw and then came another clinch. Papke swung a left on the cheek after the break and they clinched again. Ketchel swung a right on the jaw and Papke came back with a left and right on the face. It was slow fighting.

ROUND FOUR.

Ketchel was there with a straight left, but missed with a right swing. They clinched and appeared to be joshing each other. Papke jabbed a left to the stomach and there was another clinch. Ketchel swung an overhand right, catching Papke on the jaw. Ketchel's seconds yelled, but Papke was not hurt. He clinched and winked at his seconds. Papke brought the right over on the jaw. Ketchel swung with a right, and Papke sent in a poky left on the face. They clinched and Ketchel used a straight left on Papke's neck. Ketchel worked Papke into a corner and ripped the left into the body two or three times. Papke shot in two straight lefts just before the bell.

ROUND FIVE.

Ketchel got in a left hook on the cheek and another left on the stomach. Papke threw a left into the same place and they clinched. Ketchel drove Papke through the ropes with a right on the jaw falling with him on top of the spectators' heads. Ketchel was right back in the ring and he helped Papke through the ropes. They slugged and clinched. Papkes' mouth bled from Ketchels' left jolts. Papke got in short rights on the stomach. When they broke Ketchel missed with a full range right swing. He put in a right on the body and another right on the jaw just before the round ended. Ketchel was in the lead at this stage.

ROUND SIX.

They went quickly into a clinch and the referee broke them. They fumbled and clinched again. Papke drove in a left on the face. They clinched and Ketchel worked a left body punch, causing Papke to bend. Each man's nose was bleeding freely from straight lefts and Papke was nearly pushed through the ropes a couple of times. Ketchel kept forcing Papke to the ropes and Papke was inclined to clinch. It was easily Ketchel's round. Papke's nose was bleeding profusely at the end of the round.

ROUND SEVEN.

Papke was there first with a little left on the chin. They clinched. Papke drew away from left and right swings and planted a left on the stomach. Ketchel missed with the right, but caught Papke with the left and Papke clinched. Both men used short arm blows while holding. Papke held Ketchel's head under his arm in a clinch and was railed at by the crowd. There was a lot of clinching and fumbling work. Ketchel sent Papke reeling with a hard right on the jaw. Ketchel missed with another right, but drove Papke to the ropes with a right body punch. Ketchel's round.

ROUND EIGHT.

They went into a clinch and Ketchel touched his man on the neck with a left. Papke landed with a left but his punches were light. There was a lot of clinching and shoving around, each man sneaking in an uppercut occasionally. Ketchel swung a stiff right on the face but Papke did not wince. They clinched and broke and Ketchel drove a right in on the body. He took a right on the face in return. Ketchel met Papke with a savage right under the heart and then repeated the punch. He backed Papke to the ropes and drove both gloves into the body. Ketchel's round all the way.

ROUND NINE.

They clinched and Ketchel drummed with his right on Papke's side. Papke got in left and right on the face and Ketchel rammed his gloves into Papke's stomach. They clinched and Ketchel worked a left uppercut. Ketchel bent Papke across the ropes and punched him in the body. When they drew clear Papke brought a stream of blood from the nose with a hard right cross. Ketchel came back with a swinging right on the jaw and Papke, while trying to recover, tripped and fell. Ketchel went after his man and Papke clinched.

ROUND TEN.

Papke stepped in briskly, Ketchel met him with lefts on the face, bringing blood. They clinched and hung together and Ketchel worked a left upper cut. Welsh broke them and they both tried right swings without landing. Ketchel missed a right swing and Papke landed one. Ketchel swung a left into the stomach and Papke went to the ropes. They eyed each other a second and tried right swings again, neither scoring. They clinched and Ketchel pounded body with left. They both fought slow for a few seconds, Ketchel landing most of the blows.

ROUND ELEVEN.

They went into a clinch and Welsh separated them. Another clinch resulted and each struggled to use an arm. When they broke, both men fumbled as though tired. Papke, while drawing away from the ropes got a left on the jaw which sent him on his back on the floor. He took the full count and when he arose Ketchel smashed with both hands. Papke backed to the ropes and covered up. Ketchel hammered at the stomach and head and when Papke's guard dropped, brought him to the floor again. Papke rested on his hands and knees and apparently took no note of the count. The timekeeper, to make sure that there was no mistake, counted eleven before declaring Papke out. Papke looked surprised when he arose but he had no kick coming, as everyone around the ring heard the count.

Billy Papke Who Was Beaten In Bout For Championship In Eleventh Round

Papke was a strong favorite with the bettors, and thousands of dollars were lost by his admirers. In the eleventh round he was not really knocked out, but seemed so dazed as not to realize his position.

CORBETT PICKS JACK JOHNSON

Jim Corbett thinks that Jack Johnson will defeat Tommy Burns for the heavyweight championship when they meet in Australia on December 26. Local sporting men are not inclined to bet much on the result of this affair, for many of them say it may not be on the level. Among them an opinion prevails that Burns may induce Johnson to lay down, but Sam Fitzpatrick, Johnson's manager, in a letter to a friend here writes that Johnson will fight to win and will score a clean knockout inside of twenty rounds.

Light Harness Horse Owners

MAY USE SALEM TRACK

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 27.—There is a chance that the world known Salem race track will become the home of the trotters and a light harness horse meeting held there next year in connection with a big fair. This is the prospect in case that the Readville, Mass., track passes under the hammer the coming Winter, as now seems a certainty that is only waiting the outcome of the annual New England Breeders' Association meeting of stockholders in Boston on December 3.

While the Salem track property is still in litigation, yet those familiar with the circumstances claim the affairs can be arranged so as to give a clean title in the early Spring. In fixing the course for trotting meetings the turn at the three-quarters will have to be brought in to make the track a mile in place of a mile and an eighth, as at present. This is little expense, meaning simply to remove the earth of the track over sufficiently into the infield to make the circle a mile.

The two grandstands, clubhouse, betting pavillion and stables are in excellent repair, ready for use. This with the sole exception that in the big grandstand new seats will have to be put in, all of the movable property having been sold at auction.

Speaking of taking the Salem track Walter R. Cox, the noted trainer and driver, believes it will be easy to raise the cash by subscription in New England. Right in Manchester he knows of several willing to subscribe liberally toward the scheme.

"Why," continued he, in an interview, "It is the best located place in the country for a big fair and grand circuit meeting. There is a larger population to draw from than any track one can name, the cities of Boston, Lawrence, Lowell, Haverhill, Nashua, Manchester, not to mention Lynn and all the other cities and towns in the north of Boston.

"My idea would be to make it a general fair proposition by getting interested not only horsemen, but the breeders of cattle, dogs, poultry and leading farmers. Have these men secure an equal proportion of the stock and let it be distributed throughout New England. In this manner representative men residing in New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Vermont, Maine, Rhode Island and Connecticut would be interested in making the fair a huge success—and it would be.

"Abe Johnson, one of the prominent members of the Brockton Fair, has said that he hopes that the Salem track may become the home of a New England fair and grand circuit meeting, for in many ways would it help Brockton and in no way do it harm, the latter having its field to draw from in Boston and the cities and towns located south of that city.

"With an immense fair at Salem the Brockton people could secure better attractions at less cost, because those having the principal shows are at a heavy expense in shipping for only a single fair. This is the same in getting horses for the races and horse show ring. When there was plenty of racing over the New England tracks there was never any bother in securing bigger fields of starters than has been the case since the closing of the tracks."

ARMY AND NAVY ELEVENS READY FOR GAME TO-MORROW

BUNK TAKES A VISITOR FROM NEW ENGLAND OVER A PERSONALLY CODUCTED TOUR

ARMY IS READY FOR BIG GAME

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 27.—Enthusiasm at the academy continues to increase in the game to-morrow with the Navy in Philadelphia, and a big mass meeting was held by the corps of cadets in the gymnasium. This is the first time in the history of the game at West Point that a football mass meeting was ever held prior to a game. All the coaches were present and following Head Coach H. M. Nelly's speech each gave a short talk to the team and to the assembled cadets and until "call to quarters" sounded the academy rang with the Army yells and songs.

While the Navy appears to be the favorite in the coming contest, the Army lads feel that they have just as good a team. There is no predictions as to the outcome, but the Army followers know their team is in condition to put up the hardest fight that Franklin Field has seen in some time.

The Army statistics show that the Army is somewhat lighter than last year, only averaging 160 6-11. Last year the team weighed 174 2-11. The line this year weighs 177 pounds and the backs 159.

Philoon tips the scales at 170, which is five pounds lighter than when he faced Slingluff last year. Stearns, left end, weighed in at 152; Byrne, left tackle, 180; Wier, left guard, 195; Noss, right guard, 186; Pullen, right tackle, 187; Johnson, right end, 160; Greble, right halfback, 160; Hyatt, quarterback, 153; Dean, left halfback, 162; Chamberlin, full back, 156; Surle, halfback, 165; Besson, guard, 158; Underwood, end, 153.

The cadets heretofore have gathered in the barrack yard and cheered the team as they departed for the scene of the great battle, but this year they have been granted the special privilege of escorting the team to the train in a body.

NAVY KICKERS TO PRACTICE ON SCENE OF BATTLE TO-DAY

ANNAPOLIS, Nov. 27.—This morning the football squad, commanded by Lieutenant-Commander N. E. Irwin, left to Philadelphia on a special train. They will put up at the Hotel Walton, where Manager Green of the team went yesterday to make the final arrangement for their accommodation. A short bit of work will be done on Franklin Field in the afternoon.

The usual bet of even money between the students of the two institutions has been put up. Army sent down $2,500 to be covered by a Navy pool. The money had been expected and was quickly covered. This morning $2,000 more was sent to Philadelphia to be covered.

JONES MAY BE YALE'S COACH

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 27.—A reorganization in Yale football coaching and playing is probable before another year. Yale alumni believe that the team which was defeated Saturday contained the best material Yale has had since Gordon Brown's famous eleven of 1901. It was beaten by a set of players inferior individually, but equipped with better football.

One of the moves which are likely to be made is to instal Howard Jones, the Yale end a year ago, as head coach. Jones has developed the best eleven of any Yale man in the coaching field the present season. His Syracuse team tieing Princeton, losing to Yale by only one score and beating Michigan easily. It is rumored that Jones has an offer to take charge of the Annapolis eleven next year, so it is not yet certain whether he can be secured or not. It is understood that Captain Bobby Burch, of the present Yale eleven, has other plans for next year than coaching.

BOWLING ALLEY GOSSIP

Winthrop took Medford's goat to the tune of four straight, the initial defeat of the season for the latter in the Elks' League. Winthrop bowled strong, but try as they might the Medford five were unable to make the pins fall.

Everett is now the leader in the Elks with sixteen points won and four lost, with Medford right at their heels. These teams meet next Monday over the Medford alleys and then look for the fur to fly, as the rivalry between the two is intense.

John Hayes is out with a challenge to bowl his team, comprising of Johnny Maloney, Charley Sullivan, Will Furlong, Charley Norton and "Old" Scribner, against any five professionals in this city or Worcester. It is likely that he gets a game.

Showing the improvement in rapping the candles in recent years is proved by the fact that in the averages up to last Monday no less than five bowlers had averaged 102 or more, while those having averages of ninety-five or more number twenty-eight bowlers. A few years ago it was counted a crack man who could carry along an average around ninety, and the weekly tables listed all having eighty-five or more.

In figuring the Boston pins six bowlers have an average of 108 or more, Reid topping the list with 165 to his credit. It would be expected, however, that with the bigger pins the averages must go higher than with the regulation candles.

Roscoe Estes of the Pilgrims has tackled politics, he being a candidate for the Common Council from Ward 14. He will get the bowlers' vote, anyhow.

It is up to some team in the South Boston Bowling League to hand the Somersets a beating or they will make a runaway race of it, the score to this week being only a single game lost in twenty-four played. Touhy and the Ramblers are tied for second with nineteen won and five lost.

Captain Gatch of the Everetts is drilling his men in bowling left-handed. This is through being so certain of taking the championship for the second time, and to have a suitable handicap in comparison to the other teams next year he figures he ought in all fairness to make his five bowl left-handed to the other teams' right-handed.

Lynn is coming with a rush in the Elks, as four straight from Boston put them well in the running, with 13 won to 7 lost, though Malden and Winthrop are tied with them in the standing. Lynn, too, has a well-balanced team to carry them through with.

It is a close rub between Galway and Poehler in the City League, only a single point separating the two and both being over 100 in their averages.

There is certain to be surprises in the meetings of any of the league teams, but when James E. Hayes Council, of the K. of C. League, took the measure of the Medfords to the tune of three out of four points it was amazing, to say the least. Not that the victors haven't a strong five, their 472 in the opening string proving that, but many of the league followers were nearly conceding Medford as invincible.

YACHTSMEN MAKE MERRY.

The South Boston Yacht Club entertained a large gathering of members and friends Thanksgiving eve in the assembly hall of the club. The affair was a "stag party" given under the auspices of the house committee, comprising W. I. Wood, chairman, J. F. Burke, Thomas Scannell, J. J. Bock and Guy Dalton.

Among the well-known persons who entertained the audience were Fred Dempsey, William Blair, John Quigley, Joe Dempsey, John J. Crowne, William Merrill, Henderson and Johnson, Irving Brown and William Pearce.

COE IN A. A. U. INDOOR CHAMP CONTESTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Seldom have so many prominent athletes been seen at a single indoor meet as have already sent in their entries for the annual championships of the Amateur Athletic Union, which take place at Madison Square Garden on Monday, November 30, and Tuesday, December 1. Although the usual number of events are to be decided, so many preliminary heats will be necessary in most of them that the committee deemed it advisable to hold the track and field events on two successive evenings.

One race that is sure to attract a great deal of attention is the two-mile run, in which a small regiment of athletes will compete for honors. Among them are George V. Bonhag, "Fred" Bellars, senior cross-country champion; James J. Lee, who holds the junior title; M. Driscoll, who recently defeated Bellars in a scratch race at three miles, and John T. Eisele, who is credited with the second fastest time ever made by an American athlete in a three-mile run. Although Eisele is at his best on the cinder path, he should, on the form he has shown recently, force his opponents to extend themselves to defeat him.

Harry Porter, the Olympic champion high jumper, who last Saturday came within half an inch of equalling the world's record, will meet Con Leahy, H. A. Gidney of Boston, H. Grumpelt of the New York A. C. and half a dozen others in his specialty.

Lovers of weight throwing contests will have an opportunity of seeing some of the best shot putters in the world in action, among them being W. W. Coe, of Boston; M. Horr, Syracuse; Martin J. Sheridan and J. J. Elliott.

In the middle distance events, the presence of such star athletes as Melvin Sheppard, Harry Gissing, Paul Pilgrim, Harry Hillman and Charles M. Bacon will insure the keenest kind of competition.

Sprints, hurdle races, jumping and vaulting events make up the remainder of the programme, and, judging from the names that appear on the entry lists, it would not be at all surprising if one or more records are broken.

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

Although K. Elberfeld and G. Stallings have hung their lids on the same spike for many years, and are still good old side kicks, we can hardly fancy any one jimmy into our think tank that Norman will be cavorting on the Highlanders' grounds next season. A deposed chief never comes through with his best goods on the squad he once led, let it be victory or defeat.

A berth in Washington will be about what's coming to the Kid. Grand Leader Stallings is said to be working the wires to trade Elberfeld for one of the few live ones J. Cantillon has on his staff.

Judge Kavanaugh, the IT of the Southern League, says that Garry Herrmann has no right to grant an audience to the bolting American Association and Eastern League, on the grounds that they are already full-fledged outlaws. In event of a hearing being accorded the bolting twins, the Judge says the other minors will be on deck with the full array of bells and a counter petition.

R. Bresnahan is back pounding the pavements. The old boy is one of the wisest of Toledo's finest, but he had a narrow escape the other day. He started to make a big pinch, when the desperado dug his teeth deep into Bresnahan's ear, but Roger's judgment of distance had Abe Attell's faded to a frazzle, and he smote the crook a right on the kisser and he is still taking count. But Roger's ear is said to be better tinned now than our old friend, Jimmy Kelley's.

Catcher Gibson caught 140 games for Pittsburg last year.

Charley Murphy says he isn't worrying at all over the threats of Chance.

Manager Stallings announces that he will carry only a few of the Yankee veterans.

Johnny Kling is weak on catching spitball pitchers, but fortunately for the Cubs Fraser is the only man who uses it.

Joe Cantillon says he will make several trades at the big meeting of the magnates. Wonder whom Chicago is going to get.

Pretty soft for Billy Sullivan. Comiskey gives him $1,000 for catching a game with a broken finger, and then some one leaves his wife $80,000.

Warren Gill, the Pittsburg first baseman, played errorless ball in twenty-five games, yet he is to go back to the minors. Failure to hit is given as the cause.

Reulbach has led the National League twirlers for the last four years, yet he is touted less than some pitchers not nearly so successful.

Rumor has it that Christy Mathewson intends to get a contract calling for $25,000 for three years' work. He deserves it.

American League fans are patiently awaiting the publication of the official averages of Big Ban's league.

Mike Balenti, the wonderful Carlisle Indian football player, is also a diamond star. He is to join the Athletics when through at Carlisle.

Hal Chase is swatting the ball in great style in the games on the coast. He is too big an attraction for the American League to let get away.

Now that Hans Wagner is to have a circus, he will probably be able to get at least $5,000 a year more from Dreyfus to abandon the sawdust ring.

KELLEY PUT DOVEY ON THE PAN

BALTIMORE, Nov. 27.—Joe Kelley, manager of the Boston National League team, does not desire to get into any controversy with President Dovey, over whether he will or will not be the manager of the Boston National Baseball Club next season and if not how his resignation shall be brought about. He says:

"When President Dovey and I signed the contract last year I presumed that he signed in good faith as I did. That contract has yet one more year to run. Despite rumors to the contrary President Dovey has not written to me requesting my resignation. He has written merely stating that Toronto is willing to assume the contract he has with me and suggesting that it might be agreeable to me to resign.

"At present there is nothing for me to do, and accordingly I will do nothing unless President Dovey should write to me something that will put an entirely different aspect on affairs as they now stand. The National League meeting is only two weeks off, and in all probability President Dovey, representatives of the Toronto club and myself will meet in New York, where all of us will be able to see where we stand."

Puts Dovey on the Pan.

Manager Kelley is disposed, however, to criticise some of the statements purporting to have emanated from President Dovey. For instance, it has been said that President Dovey demanded that Kelley should discipline Browne for lax playing and that Kelley replied that he "did not speak to Browne."

"Such an assertion is foolish," said Manager Kelley. "The truth of the matter is that President Dovey was continually after me to fine Browne for indifferent playing. I recognized that Browne was not as good a player as we would like to have had and a hard man to handle, but at the same time it could not be positively said that Browne was not playing up to best form possible for him. He had the sun field and when I spoke to him repeatedly about not running out infield hits or about not running after balls hit out in his direction he would invariably claim that he had done all that he could do.

"But the fact remains, he was not good enough for the club and I endeavored to trade or sell him. You can't put $250 fines on players for little things that can't even be proven and the only thing to do with such players is to dispose of them. It proved impossible to trade him and I asked President Dovey to get waivers for him. He has not asked for them to this date.

Cut Out High Salaries.

"He claimed in Chicago that Chance said that he would take him and that I shouldn't do anything in the meantime. We are still waiting for Chance. President Dovey is very anxious to run the club on the lowest possible basis. His one ? was to get rid of all the high salaried players. One of these was Dahlen and until recently, when Bowerman must have called him off, he was doing his best to dispose of Dahlen to Brooklyn.

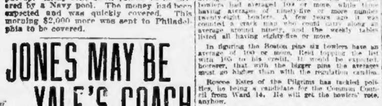

"Reduction of expenses was the one thing I heard from the time I landed in Boston until I left it, and that's the principal thing behind the reported desire to dispose of my services. By employing a playing manager, Bowerman, for instance, he could dispense with my salary entirely for managing, as he fears that I may not want to play next season.

"The trouble with Mr. Dovey is that like all persons breaking into baseball he listens to first one adviser and then another, and there is plenty of them in baseball, all of them claiming to know more about [illegible] a baseball team than the regularly appointed manager, until he don't know where he is [illegible] a conviction that the manager don't know anything at all.

"While Mr. Dovey comes from Missouri, there are others who don't come from there that will have ti be shown in the present instance."

VERDICT FOR DONAHUE.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 27.—Young Donahue of Boston was given the decision over Harry Scroggs of Baltimore, in a fifteen round bout which went the limit here tonight. It was a slashing fight throughout.

Whichever Way You Look at It, Be Thankful!

By DOROTHY DIX

Dorothy Dix

THERE is always something to be thankful for, if you look for it.

The rich can be thankful that their turkeys are stuffed with truffles and oysters, and the poor can be thankful that pork chops have no feathers on them and don't have to be picked.

The fat woman can be thankful that she has no wrinkles, and the scrawny woman that she does not have to reduce, and can wear the hipless gown without looking like a figure of fun.

The engaged man may be thankful because he has won the dearest and sweetest little girl in the world for his promised wife, and the rejected suitor may bless heaven for its mercy to him when he reflects how near Christmas is at hand and that he who has loved and lost doesn't have to buy presents.

The woman who is happily married may be down on her knees thanking God for a good man's love, while she who has gotten a misfit mate may be thankful that she has gotten somebody who is legally bound to hear all that she has got to say, anyway.

The strong and well may be thankful for the blessing of good health, but the sickly may also return thanks because invalidism is a great graft and gives the afflicted one the right to do everything he wants to do, and an excuse for not doing anything he does not wish to do.

The millionaire may be thankful for his automobile, and the poor man may be grateful that he is a better risk for life insurance.

The rich and great may give thanks for the power and place they have achieved, but the poor and humble may return thanks that they are not of sufficient interest to the public to have any lies told of them or scandal started about them.

The woman whose husband is successful in business may be thankful for the pearls and diamonds he gives her, and the woman whose husband does not get along overwell may be thankful that no chorus girl disputes the possession of a poor man with his wife.

Those who have great gifts to give may be thankful for the power they have, and those whose hands are empty may be still more thankful they are not surrounded by sycophants, but are loved by their friends for themselves alone.

Miss Croesus may be thankful because she "walks in silk attire, and siller has to spare," and the girl behind the counter may be thankful that the man who marries her will be a real man, and not a thing who sells himself for money.

Those who are rushed with business may be thankful of their prosperity, and those who are out of work may return thanks because they are saved from overwork and nervous prostration.

The woman with a Directoire gown may give thanks because she is in the fashion, and the woman who hasn't one may be filled with gratitude because she doesn't look as funny as the fat woman does who has one on.

All of us give thanks because the mercy of Heaven descends upon us all; because seed-time and harvest never fail; because after the rain comes the sunshine, and smiles follow tears, and behind the darkest clouds is the silver lining if only we have eyes to see it.

Resignation

I CANNOT think but God must know
About the thing I long for so;
I know He is so good, so kind,
I cannot think but He will find
Some way to help, some way to show
Me to the thing I long for so.

I stretch my hand—it lies so near;
It looks so sweet, it looks so dear.
"Dear Lord," I pray, "Oh let me know
If it is wrong to want it so?"
He only smiles—He does not speak;
My heart grows weaker and more weak,
With looking at the thing so dear,
Which lies so far, and yet so near.

Now, Lord, I leave at thy loved feet
This thing which looks so near, so sweet;
I will not seek, I will not long—
I almost fear I have been wrong.
I'll go, and work the harder, Lord,
And wait till in some loud, clear word
Thou callest me to Thy loved feet,
To take this thing so dear, so sweet.

—Saxe Holme.

To-day's Best Story

AT a convivial party recently a gentleman who had returned from a lengthened tour in the East was relating some of the wonderful things he had seen on his travels.

Encouraged by the reception accorded to his tallest stories, he ventured to state that he had seen at the foot of the Himalayas a tiger forty feet long from the tip of the nose to the tip of the tail. This was too much, and everybody kept silence, until the gentleman from Oban dryly remarked:

"Oh, yes, the works o' nature are very wonderful and very large whatever. Just last week I saw a skate brought ashore at Oban which covered a quarter of an acre of ground."

Nobody spoke, and amid the silence the Eastern traveller left the room. The host, perceiving that something was amiss, rose and followed him.

"Is there anything wrong?" he asked.

"I have been insulted," said the traveller. "That Scotch gentleman has dealt a blow at my veracity, and I cannot return until he apologizes."

Anxious that harmony should prevail among his guests, the host returned to the room and, explaining matters to the company, asked the Highlander to make an apology, if merely for form's sake.

"Weel," said he, "I'll no' just apologize, but tell him to come back and take a few feet off the teegar, and we'll see what can be done wi' the skate."—Tid-Bits.

PROPERLY NAMED.

"And this," he said, showing a friend over his recently built home, "is the grill room."

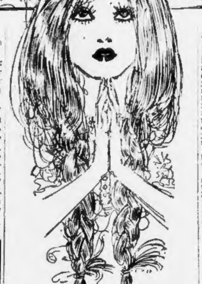

"The grill room! It is more likely a bedroom."

"Well, it is where my wife talks to me on my return from the club."—Houston Post.

What My Lady Betty Has to Be Thankful For ☙ By Nell Brinkley

"Maybe you have a big-eyed Kiddie." "And maybe you have a mother." "And your Dad—your best pal." "Maybe you've got a Billy to love you."

"A steeple in front of your chin."

ONE of our bleak, weary-skyed days last week I swung around a corner, where the wind howled and swooped little bits of ice in your face, and almost bowled into an old, old Lady, with a tiny, shriveled body, her old eyes peering out under her gray hair, and a beggar's cup in her poor, twisted hands.

She was cold, for her lips were blue and shaken, and she was very patient, for she never even raised resentful eyes when folks bumped into her—only hugged the wall closer, and drew her broken shoes out of the way.

And I thought lots of things after I hiked along down the street; with a guilty conscience, because I had a warm muff to tuck my hands into and nothing ever cold about me but my nose. And youth in my hands, too!

Oh, you Bettinas that I know, and heaps that I don't know. Thanksgiving day can come any old day.

You don't have to wait till Thanksgiving day to come round again to turn up your pretty hands into a steeple in front of your chin and tell God you're glad for what you are, and what you aren't.

I know so many things I could tell off on my fingers why you ought to be glad and grateful this day. Some of you are Bettys with a wide gold band alongside of the little narrow gemmed one on your finger, and maybe you have a big-eyed little kiddie, with fat starfish hands and wobbly legs, at your house, to pat your face, to fly to you and paw excitedly up into your lap, and choke you with his arms, and muss up your back hair, and whisper "I love you" through the jam and crumbs left high and dry on his cheeks. Maybe you have that. M-m-m-m-m!

And then maybe you have a mother—that patient, wonderfully sweet thing who always stays pretty till she dies—stays pretty to your eyes and your Dad's—who has such busy, stealthy fingers that never, never tell what they do; who has brooded and laughed over your dresses from when you were a little child, till now, when they are so long they drag off her lap on to the floor while she mends and tucks, with that funny smile on her face that always makes an ache come in your throat and your eyes flood up with tears; who has always a queer look in her eyes when she's watching you—a look that the high gods gave to mothers.

And you must send up a special particular prayer for that—and there aren't any words in it.

And then, too, maybe you have a Dad; a young-hearted Dad with gray at his temples and specks across his nose when he reads; whose man's rough hands are tender like silk when he holds and smooths his Baby Girl's hand; whose eyes hold all the patience and love that he's had singing in his heart through the years he's grinded away for frocks and pretty things and a better life than he had, for his girl.

Your Dad—your best pal, that's horribly fierce over even the name of another man—maybe you've got him. And that's a fine and wonderful thing. And if you've got him on this particular special day, oh, my dear! squeeze his hand in your two little ones and tell him you love him a lot. Because I know Bettys who can't.

And then, too, maybe you've got a Billy to love you; and that makes another little prayer, because even the scoffers say it's good to be loved.

But dear goodness! There's so many things to tell God you're glad for! Just that you've a warm place to tuck into at night, and good eatin's, and a muff to cosy your pretty hands into, and folks to love you. Just that.

What the Bride Requires

Directions for a Smartly Simple Home Wedding

By MARY HUTTON PELL

(Member of the Four Hundred and an Authority on All Social Matters)

LITTLE MRS. JUNEBRIDE is in a flutter, a flutter of delight! All day long she wrinkles her brows, smiles thoughtfully, then nods her head and makes a mad dash for her desk, to jot down another item on a sheet of foolscap that looks sufficiently long and complicated already.

"Wonder why I did not think of that before!" she murmurs under her breath. "It is sure to be just the thing."

All this, and many other mysterious little happenings just now in the Junebride dovecote, are to be explained by the announcement just made of the engagement of Miss Junebride—Mr. Junebride's sister. And Mrs. Junebride at once determines that the entire wedding shall be under her direction.

As is the fashion on this side of the water, the wedding day is already set before the formal announcement of the engagement has been published; and to Mrs. Junebride belongs the honor, not only of having "made the match" (for her sister-in-law had been one of the bridesmaids at her wedding, and is about to marry one of the ushers of that occasion, one chosen from Mrs. Junebride's list of friends who officiated), but also of giving the dinner at which the announcement was made.

The Announcement at Dinner

Of course, no engraved announcements of the engagement are sent out. The fact is announced at Mrs. Junebride's dinner; and then a simple little notice, worded about as follows, is sent out to the leading papers, especially those patronized by their friends:

> Mr. John Junebride of Number One Eastern avenue, announces the engagement of his daughter, Mary Catherine, to Mr. James Brown Smith, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Emerson Smith, of Number Ninety-nine Kinross place. The wedding will take place the second week in December.

These announcements are mailed to the society editor of each paper, and appear in due time. Before many days have gone by the bride-elect has received many little notes from her friends, congratulating her on her engagement, and the more intimate friends of both families write, saying that they would like to give a luncheon, a dinner, a theatre party, or some such entertainment in honor of the engaged pair. The schedule of these dates is then arranged, but as the time between the announcement of the engagement and the day set for the wedding is but short, the privilege of entertaining the two belongs only to the closer relatives and more intimate friends of both families.

Weighty Question of Trousseau

And, just now, the matter of the trousseau engages all the attention, the time and the energy of the bride-elect. Her own wedding being of such recent occurrence, Mrs. Junebride is a tower of strength to her sister-in-law, for all of her experiences, triumphs and disappointments are set forth, as in an open book, for the benefit of the neophyte.

It is already understood (by my readers) that the Junebride family, both senior and junior, are well-bred people, moving in good society, but not overburdened with a surplus of this world's goods. They all know what is correct in social life, what is expected of people in society; they know how to incur and how to pay social obligations gracefully, and in their simplest as well as in their most formal entertaining there is that ease and grace and composure which mark those to the manner born.

Having chosen a home wedding as being least expensive, the bride-elect wisely decides that her wedding gown shall be of such cut and fashion that it will be eminently suitable for dinner, opera and reception wear after her marriage. In both England and France a bride is expected to wear her weding gown to all entertainments given in her honor after the return from the honeymoon, and if she be presented at court on the occasion of her marriage, then it is de rigueur that she wear the bridal robe at presentation. A really wise and convenient proviso of fashion, and one that would well bear transplanting to our own side of the Atlantic Ocean.

Gown of Ivory White Satin

So the first thing decided upon is that the gown shall be of an ivory white satin brocade, as brocades are just beginning to find favor once more; and therefore the charming frock will maintain a flavor of fashion, as well as of romance, for more than one season. And, somehow, every girl always wants to be married in white satin and have a gown that shall always stand for the happiest hour in her life. There is a little good old lace in the family, heirloom of weddings of more than three generations; and it is planned to use this, but in such style that it may be removed from the gown after the wedding, without in any way interfering with the general trimming scheme of the design.

MRS. MARY HUTTON PELL.

Then the travelling costume is selected, and this with a view to getting good, general street wear out of it, when the bride-elect shall have settled down in her new home. A smart little afternoon frock for luncheon and such wear, and a more elaborate one for afternoon receptions are included. Then comes a simple little frock in chiffon and net, white with crystal encrustations, this for the dinner dances that are a part of the Winter entertaining of the circle in which she moves.

The Lingerie Should Be Limited

In the matter of lingerie, Mrs. Junebride sagely advises that the supply be of a limited character, for, she argues shrewdly, the present fashions demand the scantiest proportions in one's undergarments; and, as fashions change all too soon for those with a heavily stocked wardrobe, a little amount, but that little good, is far and away the wisest as well as the smartest selection.

It goes without saying that all of the bridal lingerie is handmade, for somehow there is a certain sentiment pertinent to handmade garments that never can, or does, associate itself with machine made clothing. Not but what a good quality in machine made goods is much preferable to poor handwork; but, as one expects to purchase a trousseau but once, it were as well to have that of as fine quality as taste dictates and the purse permits.

And so the bride-elect orders but six sets of each garment, in place of the two or three dozen of each that her mother ordered when she, in her day and generation, was ordering her trousseau; with a comfortable boudoir robe, and a single dainty tea gown.

To Be Continued.

This Is What the Children Did.

WHAT some of the little children in the Chicago Ghetto did during the Summer vacation is told in papers prepared for their teacher and published herewith, some necessary changes being made, including changes in the names of the writers.

Maxie Missovitch writes: "We went July 4 to a picnic. We took a senovitch (sandwich) of cheese and butter. Then they gave us a senovitch of ham, so we knocked it away and they gave us bananas and ice cream. I run a race from 100 yards. Oh, we had a golly time."

Here are Millie Belostoky's experiences: "From vacation school I went to an amusement park. We seen there camels; it cost money to ride on it. Vacation was ten weeks, so I went to the country by my aunt. Then we went over my grandmother's house and stood there three days, then come back Chicago."

Leo Romanofsky evidently is fond of city life, for he writes: "In vacation school we made pretty things, but if ever I enjoy myself I like school better than my vacation. We went to Lincoln Park and saw the lines and ilness and some snake that were very thick. Then I went to the country and went buggy riding, past semataries and all over. But at night it is so lonly you hardly see any people."

One small unfortunate who did not possess a vacation school ticket wrote: "I tried to go, but they chased me down, and I was always home. The hole vacation I held the baby. But Sunday I went out for pleasure to Lincoln park on a consert. A lady sang and the musions played very nice. We saw the enamils and once we went to Evingston."

"Bright-eyed little Sallie wrote: "In Jackson park we saw some momies lieing in their kofans. In the life-saving boats there was bugs blowen up. After we saw these we had some eat. In vacation my mother took good care of me and I weigh 6 pounds more than June."

Rosie Moses, who went still farther afield, wrote: "I stood by my auntie in Rodgers Park. When we wear in Lions the displains River was almost dried up and the fish were dead. Lots of acorns was there and after I went to Lincoln park to throw them to the squirrels. There we saw a monkey how she persted her baby and the little ones climbed up and down the latter."

Morris Witkowsky wrote: "I was monday in a park and heard Bryn speech. In vacation school I made match-boxes out of brass. We made a design out of paper, then the teacher gave us a block and two tacks and a nail. With these I hit it on till I would have it all finished. I had very little help and my work is up for exhibition."

Beckie Bernstein was busy in vacation, for she wrote: "I sewed a cushion in vacation school. Everybody said it was pretty, but it is not good sew. Then I mad me some aprons and a suit to bath. We went row boating. Then I and some other layed in the sand and put it over our bodys. After, I went to Wriggling's circus. It was grand."—Exchange.

IT SHOULD HELP.

"This 'Burke's Peerage' is a fine thing and a handy guide."

"Think so?"

"Yes; I think we ought to return the compliment by getting up a catalogue of heiresses."

A SAD JOLT.

"How about that spirituelle girl whom you used to rave about? You passed her just now without a glance."

"Yes. She murmured 'rubberneck' the last time I turned to look at her spirituelle face."

Money-Savers for Thrifty Shoppers Selected by an Expert

FOR AN EXCELLENT value in a well made taffeta silk petticoat shop at the Ideal Silk Store, 29 Temple place. They have arranged to place on sale for readers of the Boston American just one hundred petticoats, made of fine quality, rustling taffeta, at $2.95, that would be splendid value for $4. This lot contains black and all the popular shades, made with deep flounces of tucking or tailored strappings.

SOME OF THE BEST VALUES IN high-grade corsets will be found at Chandler & Company's Tremont Street Shop on Saturday, when an odd lot of models—including the popular C. B., a la Spirite, P. D. and Princess makes—that are regular $3.50, $4 and $5 goods, will be marked to $1.95 each. Models of silk broche, imported batiste and coutille in the medium and extreme hip, having strong silk and webbing hose supporters attached at front and sides and beautifully trimmed at top, may be had at this price. There is a good range of sizes.

ONE OF THE SMARTEST NET waists will be offered to you at Henry Siegel's to-morrow at a bargain. It is made of the popular tucked net in a button back model, with long, close fitting sleeves, and is all lined with silk. The front has a double accordian plaited ruffle, edged with colored braid on the left side, with a border of braid in scroll pattern, and the high, shaped collar and pointed cuffs are finished with lace beading and accordian plaited net ruffle to match front. This attractive model has been selling as a special at $2.98, but to call customers will be sold for $2.39. A splendid value.

A MOST USEFUL BARGAIN WILL BE offered to Saturday shoppers at the Boston Department Store. One lot of slipper and laundry bags, made of fine quality heavy art ticking, that regularly sells for $1, may be had for 79 cents. The slipper bag is 28x22 inches and has eight full pockets, with lap nicely finished all round, and has nine large eyelets. The laundry bag is very roomy. It is 36x22 inches, made of heavy art ticking and may be had in handsome floral designs in a variety of pretty colorings and Persian effects. This price is positively for one day only.

IF THE BABY NEEDS A new pair of worsted leggings shop at James A. Houston's Saturday, as they will offer just thirty-six pairs of their regular 49-cent leggings to readers of this column at 29 cents a pair. They come in sizes one and two years, and are made without feet, in white and grey.

SOME VERY PRETTY STYLES IN well made eiderdown sacques that would ordinarily sell for 98 cents and $1.25 may be had at Filene's to-morrow for 59 cents. There are three distinct styles, having self-colored satin, crochet edge or white applique trimming, containing sacques of red, blue, heliotrope and gray. As there are only fifty in the lot it would be advisable to shop early in the day.

THIS SEASON BLACK FURS ARE proving very popular and at A. Shuman's they have a fine showing of them. One particularly good set, made of Bay seal with a large pillow muff and smart tie, is especially attractive at $12.75. The muff is nicely lined with brocaded grey silk or brown satin and may be had separately for $10. If you are thinking of purchasing a fur set it would be well to look at these on Saturday, as they are especially priced.

Idleness Is Sure to Bring Discontent

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Beatrice Fairfax

SOME of us have a great deal to be thankful for, some have comparatively little; but all have something for which thanks is due.

The other day I came to town feeling thoroughly discontented and depressed. As I walked along the station platform I became conscious of a little figure trudging along beside me.

Looking down I saw a girl of about twenty-five. She was painfully deformed, and walked with great difficulty, but she was chatting away to her companion as cheerfully as possible.

Don't Act Like a Spoiled Child!

And there was I, perfectly well and strong, able to run and jump and walk miles, if need be, and I was acting like a spoiled child.

Think of all the joys of life that girl must miss! Things that all the rest of us take for granted and never think of being thankful for.

And I know a little woman whose husband is critically ill and will be for months to come. But she is brimming over with thankfulness because a kind friend has given them an apartment, rent free; and, though she has to work hard to support herself and her husband, she at least does not have to think of the rest.

Perhaps you have many troubles, but surely you have some joys.

Idleness Brings Discontent

I find that those of my friends who are most discontented are those who have the time to sit down and pity themselves. Be thankful for youth, or for health, or for the love of family and friends, or for luxury. Oh, there are thousands of causes for gratitude, and surely among them all you can find one that applies to you!

We hear on every side that times are to be much better. Let us be thankful for that.

If your parents are living, and you have a chance to return some of their life-long devotion to you, you have much to be thankful for.

Count your blessings instead of your woes, for a change, and then give glorious, unrestricted thanks for every single one of them.

Give Your Heart a Housecleaning

Your heart needs a housecleaning. It needs to be swept free of every malice, uncharitableness and to be stocked anew with forgiveness, sweetness and goodness.

You have no right to say that you have no cause for thankfulness, for it is not true.

You should be thankful that you were born into the world with eyes to see its beauty and wonders.

Rejoice with others, even if your own lines have fallen in sorry places.

Even if you are not personally grateful, do your share in giving thanks for the prosperity of the country.

Think of oppressed and downtrodden Russia, and then give thanks for our free and splendid country, where every one has at least a fighting chance.

ENCOURAGEMENT.

"There is only one reason why I have never asked you to be my wife."

"What is that?"

"I have always been half afraid you might refuse."

"Well" (in a whisper, after a long silence), "I should think you'd have curiosity enough to want to find out whether your suspicion was well founded or not."

Back to the Farm, Young Men

New England's Stony Acres Present as Fine a Business Proposition as Ever

Professor John Craig of Cornell University told the Governors of New England, who, unlike the ancient Carolina Governors, exchanged ideas and not jugs, that apples are the crop which farmers in this section ought to raise for profit to themselves and the community. He said there was an abundance of available land and no great cost in planting and growing.

It has been a long time since much attention was paid to farming in New England. The land here is of poor quality compared with that in the Middle, Western and Southern States. In competition with more favored sections there has been no money in wheat and corn, and not much in cattle.

But it is true that the day is coming when there will be no deserted farms in New England—when they can no longer be bought with their buildings for a song. It is a question whether money invested in that kind of property at present will not, with a little patience, be a "gilt-edged" investment in the long run.

There are farmers near Boston who have small holdings and yet are making a fortune out of growing certain vegetables, and there are few notable instances of intensive cultivation on their part, either.

The demand for their products is so much in excess of the supply that they get big prices. They will keep on getting them, for the demand will grow faster than the supply, and this leaves open an inviting field for others to occupy in common.

There will be more vegetables and less meat used as a steady diet by the American people in the future. The price of meat evidently has gone up to stay. It has achieved a tremendous advance within a few years. This is partly due to the Beef Trust.

But the situation presents better opportunities to those content to go back to first principles and cultivate New England land.

Once there were thousands of little slaughter houses scattered over it. There were killed the beeves raised in their neighborhood. The beef was of fine quality and even the poorest of wage-earners could afford to eat it.

Then came the development of the great Western cattle ranges. Where the buffalo roved by millions the cattle grazed by hundreds of thousands. Chicago's great packing industry and the Beef Trust were developed and for years Western beef could be sold cheaper in New England than local beef. Out of existence went all the little slaughter house men. It no longer paid the New England farmer to raise a few head of cattle.

But times have changed again. The great Western ranges are a thing of the past. The cowboy is going off the map as fast as the trapper went. Farms are taking the places of the ranges. The demand for meat is greater and the supply getting smaller. There would be a profitable business in New England again to-day for the thousands of little butchers with their own little slaughter houses if the farmers around them all raised a few head of cattle.

With milk selling at nine and ten cents a quart and the price of butter at the zenith, there is not much need to point out what can be done in the dairy line, too, if the Milk Trust can be throttled.

New England acres are stony, but they have been found adequate pasturage in the past. There are a great many crops besides apples that can be grown on land which Western and Southern farmers view with contempt.

The New England farmer has something which will offset the superior soil advantage possessed by farmers far away. He has a great and steady market at his very doors.

In fact, intelligent farming is a good business proposition in New England to-day and it will get better and better in the future. Many a young man who wants to go to Harvard, Yale, Dartmouth, Bowdoin, Brown or any of the other New England colleges to prepare himself for law or medicine would do better if he took the course at a standard agricultural college and learned to farm scientifically and profitably.

He could buy a "deserted farm" for the price of what it would cost him to live while he waited and struggled for a professional practice.

He would attain one of the greatest gifts a man can have, INDEPENDENCE. It takes as much intelligence, training and sense to be a good farmer as to be a good doctor or lawyer. For the average man who will take the time to make himself capable, farming will pay the best.

Those Skyscrapers of America

The American Spirit Will Protect and Encourage Them

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

We want to impress again on our readers that it is their duty to denounce well meant and very foolish efforts to limit the height of American buildings. Let all necessary laws be passed to insure safety of tenants, and let the genius of the American architect and engineer work unhampered by the silly fussing of the man who only knows how to say "DON'T."

The man who interferes with the possibilities of modern building is trying, without knowing it, to check the genius of America and of this age, to prevent the creation of an American school of architecture destined to beautify the world and to surpass all accomplishments of the past as completely as the round dome of St. Peter's surpasses the round dome of the Northerner's ice hut.

What should the builder and the engineer give to the architect but the possibility of executing, OF BUILDING, the architect's greatest idea?

When those first Italians of genius were seeking to build the wonderful domes that culminated in the beauty of St. Peter's and the genius of Michael Angelo, they were encouraged, not pulled back. They were not told that the dome would fall and crush the worshippers, or shut out the light from the next street. With the encouragement and the blessing of the Popes—always friends of art—with the cordial support of the whole people, they worked at their task, and we have the reward to-day.

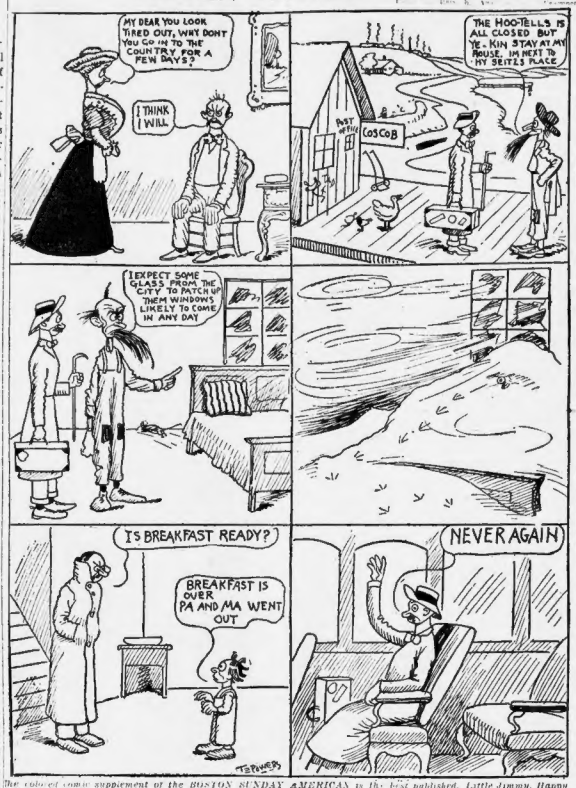

What they did beautifully with heavy stone, the genius of the future will do marvellously, miraculously, in fairy palaces of steel and glass. We shall see the building a mile high—a real expression of great thought.

Man, the child of nature, abhors uniformity. Only dulness would keep houses at the same level and squeeze things down. Nature works in contrasts—the great mountain peak and the little hill, the stunted shrub and the giant tree, the gentle breeze and the roaring gale. Those contrasts make life worth living. We need them in everything, in our literature, our food, our talk, our drama, our pictures, and, above all, in our buildings.

Leave the architects alone to work out the architecture of America and the future. Let them go as far out from the earth's centre as they can. There's sunlight and air enough for all. Let him who goes out farthest from the earth's crust get the most of both.

THE LADDER

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

UNTO each mortal who comes to earth
A ladder is given by God, at birth.
And up this ladder the soul must go,
Step by step, from the valley below;
Step by step, to the centre of space,
On this ladder of lives, to the Starting Place.

In time departed (which yet endures)
I shaped my ladder, and you shaped yours.
Whatever they are—they are what we made:
A ladder of light, or a ladder of shade,
A ladder of love, or a hateful thing,
A ladder of strength, or a wavering string.
A ladder of gold, or a ladder of straw,
Each is the ladder of righteous Law.

We flung them away at the call of death,
We took them again with the next life breath
For a keeper stands by the great birth gates;
As each soul passes, its ladder waits.

Though mine be narrow and yours be broad,
On my ladder alone can I climb to God.
On your ladder alone can your feet ascend,
For none may borrow and none may lend.

If toil and trouble and pain are found,
Twisted and corded, to form each round,
If rusted iron or mouldering wood
Is the fragile frame, you must make it good.
You must build it over and fashion it strong,
Though the task be as hard as your life is long;
For up this ladder the pathway leads
To earthly pleasures and spirit needs;
And all that may come in another way
Shall be but illusion, and will not stay.

In useless effort, then, waste no time:
Rebuild your ladder and climb and climb.
